Thousands to Join In Second Day of Memorial Tributes

Parade, P-51 Salute To Highlight Event

Thousands of Mansfielders are expected to join in solemn ceremonies for the second day of the Memorial week end today—paying tribute to those who gave their lives in defense of this nation's freedom.

Several hundred persons will participate in the morning rituals, hundreds will march in the afternoon parade with several thousand persons expected to line the route of march to the cemetery.

A last-minute addition to events scheduled for today will be a flight of 12 to 16 P-51 Mustang fighter planes over the city at 3 p. m. The planes will come from Columbus, according to the advisory committee of the 164th Fighter Squadron, Air National Guard, and will deliver an aerial salute to Mansfield.

Here is the line-up of today's program:

10 a. m.—Placing of emblems and wreaths at the entrance to Mansfield cemetery in memory of the veterans of all wars of the United States.

11 a. m.—Services and Decoration at the Doughboy monument in Central Park in memory of all Unknown Soldiers, conducted by the American Legion auxiliary.

12 Noon—Tolling of the bells of Mansfield's churches. Flags raised to full staff at this time.

1 p. m.—Ringing of the old fire bell at Central park, summoning organizations to assemble for the parade.

1:30 p. m.—Parade starts at Mulberry street, moving east on Park avenue west, around Central park to South Diamond street, south on South Diamond street, to the cemetery.

2 p. m.—Memorial Day services in the amphitheater of the Mansfield cemetery.

Orator of the Day will be Maj. Robert Hall, commanding officer of the 321st Bombardment Reserves group here.

The invocation will be read by Rev. John G. Gensel, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

GENERAL ORDERS

Frank Schneider, adjutant of the Robert P. Spreng Post 26, Amvets, will read John A. Logan's General Orders Number 11.

A Mansfield Senior high student, William R. McGraw, will recite Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address."

The poem, "In Flander's Field," will be recited by Lt. Cmdr. Thomas B. Wright, commanding officer of Division 195 of the Naval Reserve.

Roll call of the veteran dead will be read by Harvey W. Burghard, guard of the Department of Ohio, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mrs. Leona Locke, president of the Women's Relief Corps, will read the Roll Call of the auxiliary dead.

A Salute to the Dead will be giving by a firing squad of Company F, 145th Infantry. Taps will be sounded by American Legion buglers.

President of the Day is Clyde L. Myers.

In the event of rain the services will be held in the First Lutheran church.

Plane Salute Puts Zip In Recruit Drive

A special fillip will be added to the U.S. Air Force exhibit in Central park today. Overhead at approximately 3 p. m. will roar from 12 to 16 P-51 Mustang fighters, air guard officials announced.

The planes are due in from Columbus as a part of the show which up to last night had brought 113 new recruits for the 164th Fighter Squadron, Air National Guard, which is to be stationed at Mansfield Municipal airport in a million dollar installation.

Recruiting began Saturday morning and will continue through today in Central park. Tonight the air exhibit, brought here from Wright-Patterson air base, will leave. Recruiting will continue throughout the week at room 200 Farmers Bank building. A total of 353 officers and men is needed for the squadron.

The exhibit and today's flight were brought here by the new squadron's advisory committee as part of the Memorial week-end ceremonies and to speed the recruiting drive.

Tents where veterans and civilians may sign up are open all day at the Central park exhibit.

Veterans' Units Hear Memorial Sermon

Approximately 325 representatives of the Mansfield war veterans organizations and members of St. Paul's Lutheran church were warned of their responsibilities to the war dead Sunday at Memorial Day services in the church at 10:30 a. m.

Rev. John G. Gensel in his Memorial sermon cited the negligence of the people of the world in securing a successful peace between nations.

"The world today can be pictured as a man with one hand grasping heaven and his two feet firmly implanted in hell," he said. "We must raise our standards and our aim to that of Christ, to love one another, then we will stand a chance of eliminating war."

"If the men who paid the supreme sacrifice could speak from their graves they would tell us that no one is victorious in war and that everyone loses. They would place the responsibility of securing peace upon us. We must become living memorials to them," he said.

The representatives from the veteran organizations and from the auxiliary units marched from the Memorial building and the American Legion home to St. Paul's church where they posted their colors before the memorial service.

180 Killed On Holiday

Week End Death Toll Mounting

(By Associated Press)

The lives of at least 180 persons were snuffed out in accidents during the first two-thirds of the nation's Memorial day week end.

This total was more than half of the predicted death toll of 225 from all accidental causes during the three-day holiday period.

Auto mishaps killed 112, drownings accounted for 25. Miscellaneous accidents, including airplane mishaps killed at least 43 others.

With today's heavy homebound traffic still to be reckoned with, the traffic toll equalled the 112 estimated by the National Safety council as the country's cost in lives for holiday automobile migration.

The deaths by states, with those attributed to traffic accidents listed first, drownings second, and miscellaneous causes, including plane crashes, third:

Alabama 2-0-0; California 10-0-2; Colorado 0-2-0; Connecticut 1-0-0; Delaware 1-0-0; Florida 5-0-6; Georgia 0-0-1; Illinois 12-3-3; Indiana 6-2-0; Iowa 5-0-0; Kentucky 9-0-0; Louisiana 1-2-0; Maine 2-1-0; Maryland 3-0-0; Massachusetts 1-0-0; Michigan 4-0-6; Minnesota 2-0-3; Mississippi 1-0-0; Missouri 3-0-0; Montana 0-0-3; Nebraska 2-0-1; New Jersey 4-1-0; New York 4-4-3; Ohio 6-1-3; Oklahoma 2-0-0; Oregon 1-0-0; Pennsylvania 6-2-9; South Dakota 2-0-0; Tennessee 2-0-0; Texas 0-4-2; Virginia 8-1-0; Washington 1-0-0; West Virginia 3-1-1; Wisconsin 2-1-1, and Wyoming 1-0-3.

Bares Murder Ring

PEIPING — (AP) — Government garrison headquarters said Sunday the "more than 10" students arrested in North China since mid-April had been accused of organizing a murder ring for the communists. The student arrests have provoked protest demonstrations at universities in various parts of China.

Crowds Jam Indianapolis Speedway

Daredevil Racing Car Drivers Ready to Go

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(AP)—The world-famous 500-mile automobile race will be decided today for the 32nd time at the Indianapolis Speedway, with 33 of the fastest racing cars ever built striving for victory.

The tiny, low-slung racers and the spirited daredevils driving them will be competing in this risky contest for prizes totalling more than $160,000, richest ever offered.

The winner will receive $20,000 first prize, plus $100 for every lap in which he leads. The winner usually is out in front long enough to make his total earnings $30,000 to $60,000.

The starting field is the fastest in 500 mile race history. It is a blend of experienced veterans and freshmen, a combination of soloists and teams and a mixture of favorites and dark horses.

It will be the first to include two 130-mile-an-hour qualifiers. It will contain ten brand new automobiles and nine new drivers.

Attendance for the nation's biggest single day sports spectacle may reach a record 175,000. All 65,000 reserved seats, ranging in prices up to $15, were sold in advance. Speedway officials are prepared to handle an overflow crowd of tremendous proportions.

Only the weatherman's nod is needed to assure a dry, fast track, and perfect racing conditions. The forecast was for slightly cloudy skies, with temperatures in the 80's, but no rain.

The race itself will start at 11 a. m. (EST) when the pace-setting car drops down on the apron at 95 miles an hour.

Race fans expect to see the late Floyd Robert's record winning speed of 117.2 miles an hour of 1938 smashed. For the first time they hope to see the leader averaging better than 120 miles an hour past the halfway mark.

Services Honor America's War Dead Around World

(By Associated Press)

Sacrifices of America's war dead were commemorated yesterday in Memorial day exercises around the world.

President Truman spoke at the main tribute, a ceremony in Arlington National cemetery across the Potomac river from Washington. He told the crowd in the Arlington amphitheater, and the nation by radio, that peace "is our ambition for the whole world."

"I hope that these celebrations all over the world in memory of those who gave their lives for liberty will emphasize the fact that the government of the United States works only for peace in the world, and in order to attain that peace we must have the ability to enforce it," Mr. Truman said.

"May God give us that strength and that ability."

The President placed a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier. In another Washington ceremony, he placed a rose in floral anchor that was deposited in the Potomac in honor of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This year's Memorial Day comes at a time when almost 40,000 armed forces dead in World War II have been returned to the United States for final interment. Preparations are continuing for the return of other thousands at the request of relatives.

Those who still rest where they fell overseas were not forgotten. There were three main memorial services opened to the public in Europe—at Foy, Belgium; Margraten, Holland; and Solers, France—where housands lie in U. S. cemeteries.

Services arranged in the Pacific included ceremonies atop Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima.

Speeches in America included one by Gen. Omar Bradley, army chief of staff, at Longmeadow, Mass.

"We who fail to prevent them (wars)," Bradley said, "must share in the guilt for the dead." At the same time, he said America must never "cringe from the necessity of meeting issues boldly with principle, resolution and strength."

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas spoke at Hyde Park, N. Y., services in memory of President Roosevelt.

Hitler's English Friend Dies

Odd 'Romance' Recalled

OBAN, Scotland—(AP)—Unity Freeman-Mitford, 33, center of a storm of speculation at the beginning of the war because of her friendship with Adolf Hitler, died Saturday night.

Miss Freeman-Mitford, the daughter of Baron Redesdale, became ill a few days ago at the home of her parents on the island of Inchkenneth. A friend of the family said her death was believed to have been caused by meningitis.

In Germany, near Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat at the beginning of the war, she was seriously wounded by a pistol shot in the head under circumstances never publicly explained.

She was unconscious three weeks in a Munich hospital. Top German physicians attended her, and on Christmas eve, 1939, Hitler arranged to send her home. On his orders an ambulance train took her to a French channel port and the British government allowed her to join her family.

In England she recovered speedily from her wound.

Her English friends said it was an accident. In Germany it was known that she had seen Hitler on several occasions in those tense days immediately preceding the German attack on Poland and the British declaration of war on Germany. She had been a guest at his retreat in the Bavarian Alps.

Grads Get Stirring Challenge

2,000 Hear Baccalaureate

By NITA BRANSON

A faith to live on, a philosophy to live by, a self fit to live with, and a cause to live for—these were the four things Rev. Carveth P. Mitchell told 384 members of the 1948 graduating class of Mansfield Senior high school last night, that he wanted for them in the years to come.

More than 2,000 persons attended the baccalaureate service.

It was a heart-stirring, heart-warming sight as the students marched into the church, the boys in maroon gowns and the girls in white, completely filling the entire main auditorium of the First English Lutheran church.

By 7 p. m. almost the entire section of the church not reserved for the graduating class was filled. Scores stood during the service and five hardy souls took themselves into the choir loft back of the pulpit.

In his sermon to students last night, Rev. Mitchell took for a Biblical example the Apostle Paul, who said, "For me to live is Christ."

"Because life meant Jesus Christ to Paul, we call his an integrated life," Rev. Mitchell declared.

WHAT DO YOU WANT

"What kind of a life do you want? What do you want from Life? If dreams were for sale, what would you buy? Many men, like Midas, want gold. Gold is what they get, but God pity them.

"Life will try to give you exactly what you want deep down in your heart of hearts. Animals, they say, want only food, shelter, play and sex. There are many people like that but they are the dregs of our civilization. Life is all we have; if we fail life, there is nothing else.

"There are four things you can do with life," Rev. Mitchell continued. "You can run away from life, with drugs, or drink or by day dreams or by kidding yourself. You can run along with life, with the herd, the crowd, drifting along like dead wood with the current. You can take yourself in hand, grit your teeth and obtain your goal. You may make some contribution to life that way."

Rev. Mitchell was assisted in the service by Rev. Charles W. Stoneburner, pastor of the First Methodist church and Rev. Arthur F. Lindbeck, pastor of the Mayflower Congregational church, fathers of two of the graduates.

Music was provided by a choir from the senior class who sang the beautiful and devout, "Open Our Eyes" by Macfarlane, with Phyllis Stahl as the narrator. They were directed by A. Lemoine Derr. For an offertory solo, Margery Selby, a graduate, sang Franck's "O Lord Most Holy."

The organ processional and recessional were played by Mrs Clayson Bell, church organist.

Taft Favors House Vote

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said last night he believes a majority of the House favors public housing and should be given a chance to vote on it.

But Rep. Albert M Cole (R-Kans.) said public housing is "Socialism" which, he added, would give the government the same kind of control as exercised "by London and Moscow."

Taft and Cole exchanged views in radio debate on the senate-passed Taft - Ellender-Wagner long range housing bill designed to encourage construction of 15,000,000 new homes by 1958.

Of these, 500,000 would be public housing units to be built during the next five years. They would be owned and constructed under the direction of local government housing authorities, with multi-billion dollar federal grants making up the difference between operating costs and what tenants could pay in rent.

Girl Saves Three, Loses Own Life

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Carol Elizabeth Roberts, 16, was credited Sunday with helping save the lives of three persons before she was struck and killed by a car.

Witnesses told Safety Patrolman Charles Huthledge the girl pushed Cora Lee Welcher and June Mae Saylor out of the path of the car. Cora Lee was carrying three-year-old Thelma Rae Kidwell.

Flood Waters Take Unknown Toll of Lives

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—An unknown number of persons living in the war built Vanport housing center were drowned yesterday when a wall of water burst through a protective dike surrounding the low-lying area of 18,500 persons.

Hundreds of men, women and children were swept off their feet as the water burst unexpectedly into the west edge of the sprawling community.

Mothers saw their children—playing in the yards—carried away by the water. Many slipped from the grasp of their parents as they dashed madly for upper floors of their apartment houses.

An Associated Press staff reporter on the scene within a few minutes after the water struck said it was a madhouse of people trying to save their lives, their families and their goods.

Hundreds are trapped in the second floors of the houses. They are lucky and safe.

One woman screamed to the reporter "I can't find my boy. His daddy is looking for him. I can't find him either."

Larry Moran, soaked to the skin, said the water was waist deep before the community knew the water had broken through.

Moran said his wife swam to higher ground and he plunged through carrying their baby. He said a woman and child and another woman were pulled out of his grasp and swept away. He didn't see them again.

Hundreds of children were playing in the community area in the warm Sunday afternoon sunshine.

One housing unit was struck, and tipped at an angle before the occupants knew the water was upon the town.

Women were screaming for their children and for help.

The two highway exits from the low area of the community to a main truck highway high above the flood level were jammed, blocking the way for pedestrians scrambling to get away from the rising water.

Moran, his eyes glazed, kept repeating to Gordon G. MacNab, the Associated Press staffer, "I can't tell you any more. That's all I know." He repeated it as if his voice was stuck on a recording, over and over again.

FLOOD IMPACT FELT

The disaster brought the full impact of the flood that has devastated the upper Columbia and its great tributaries for almost a week to the Portland metropolitan area.

The Vanport community—which during the war was Oregon's second city with a population of 42,000 shipyard workers—is located at the northern end of Portland and situated inside a square formed by highway and railroad embankments and Columbia river dikes.

The water that burst into the town came through a railroad embankment that had been weakened by water seepage. The north edge of the community abutts near the Columbia river.

Residents of the area had been reassured for two days that they were in no immediate peril. Red Cross officials, however, had prepared for evacuation for two days, but the dike break caught every agency unawares.

Governor John Hall declared a state of limited emergency and immediately authorized the national guard to use materiel and personnel as needed.

The army corps of engineers said the ground level of the town was 15 feet below the river level but the depth of the water in the town was not known immediately. It appeared to have risen to the level of the river, according to witnesses.

Walls of water, each higher than the next, poured through the town like ocean breakers. The waves tore the flimsy wooden houses from their foundations, sent them whirling along with the current.

Thousands of persons were rescued. Men formed human chains and passed women and children along them to safety.

Nearly every bus, truck, and taxi available rushed to the scene when the break came. Many of them were caught in the water.

A warning siren, when the leak was first discovered, gave the first alarm to residents living farther away from the broken dike.

Arabs Ready For Attack On Tel Aviv

U. N. Awaits Reply On Mediation Plan

BULLETIN

TEL AVIV, Israel—(AP) Irgun Zvai Leumi appealed to Russia last night for help in stamping out the "Arab-British aggression" in the Holy Land.

(By Associated Press)

Allied Arab forces appeared last night to be grouping for the battle of Tel Aviv.

Armor and artillery of Trans-Jordan's Arab legion moved up to the crescent-shaped front, which has its eastern end tied to Jerusalem's old city and has formed patrols probing west to Hartiv.

Hartiv is less than 20 miles east of Tel Aviv, heart of Palestine Jewry and military headquarters for Israel.

Less than 20 miles southwest of the legion forward positions, Egyptian forces hammered at the Jewish seacoast settlement of Isdud, 23 miles south of Tel Aviv.

Dispatches filed from Jerusalem said the city was relatively quiet except for sporadic mortaring of the center of town and the Beit Israel quarter.

Meanwhile the United Nations Security council is awaiting Jewish and Arab answers to the British proposal for peaceful mediation, which the council approved Saturday night.

Several delegates said they had hopes the Arabs anhd Jews would accept before the council deadline, which is 6 p. m. (EST) Tuesday.

The council called for a four-weeks cease-fire in Palestine, an embargo during that period on sending arms and men into Palestine and the seven Arab countries, and for Jews and Arabs to cooperate with the U. N. mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte of Sweden.

Authoritative circles credited American Delegate Warren R. Austin with playing a strong role in rewriting the British resolution to make it acceptable to the United States and at least tolerable to Russia.

Claims FDR Pledged Aid For Poland

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The president of the Polish-American congress said last night that Franklin D. Roosevelt promised him that he would "take care of Stalin after the war."

Charles Rozmarek of Chicago in a formal report to the congress said that he spoke with the late President twice before the Yalta conference and that Roosevelt said "he had mortal fear of Stalin teaming up with Hitler."

Rozmarek quoted Roosevelt as having said he would work for the independence of Poland after the war, but that it was necessary to win the war first.

But at Yalta, said Rozmarek, "Roosevelt sold Poland down the Volga."

Horoscope

For Tuesday, June 1

ADVERSE conditions of most discouraging and depressing omen must be predicted in the passing influence of the moon, in relation to planets of major significance An abrupt situation, of deep-seated and destructive nature, is likely to disrupt all plans, set aside all promises and prospects for cooperation from those in high positions, who themselves may be guilty of erratic or erroneous judgment Either postpone important decisions and procedures, else resort to protective measures, until the crisis blows over Avert such sudden blows by calm conduct in all relations

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which all their creative, and inventive genius may be demanded to meet sudden blows, unseen crises, crashes or separations, of quite unforeseen precipitancy. Radical and abrupt measures may incite opposition or forfeit the good will of those expected to cooperate While these are likewise under a spell of erroneous judgment, precipitate actions, or false moves, it would be well not to aggravate or alienate anyone Maneuver for time, postpone operations until the gust of unfortunate wind blows over Protect assets and personal relations from emotional decisions

A child born on this day may be disposed to act with sudden and erratic impulse impelled by emotion rather than logic, thus forfeiting needed help in critical situations

Book Tells History of Old Highway

City Library Gets 'The National Road'

THE NATIONAL ROAD, by Phillip Jordon, is a recent addition to the AMERICAN TRAILS SERIES, edited by Jay Monagan. The book is among the new nonfiction available at the Mansfield Public library.

This road which eventually became U. S.-40 was a first western experiment in Federal highways and ran straight into a congressional fight over state rights. The history of the road is the history of our growth and westward progress. It begins with young George Washington riding west to the forks of the Ohio and ends with the whir of cars and trucks on cross-country runs.

ON ACTIVE SERVICE IN PEACE AND WAR, by Henry L. Stimson, and McGeorge Bundy is based on Stimson's diary, his extensive official papers, and 18 months of mutual conversation and discussions. Over half the book deals with World War II. This is a valuable, authoritative record which sets forth Stimson's estimate of Roosevelt as a war president, and his belief that the atom bomb was a logical and inevitable weapon, and his tart account of the civil war between the Army and the Navy.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND THE COMING OF WORLD WAR II by Charles Beard, is one historian's interpretation of the events that led up to Pearl Harbor and the part played by President Roosevelt. It is based in large part on the Pearl Harbor investigation reports and is a controversial and important book.

THE INSIDE STORY OF THE PENDERGAST MACHINE, by Maurice Milligan, is the unadorned factual story of the breaking of the old political machine in Kansas City. The author is a former U. S. district attorney who sent Tom Pendergast to jail.

Other non-fiction titles: WOMEN IN INDUSTRY, by Baetjer; AMERICAN FARMER, by Fryer; AMERICAN LANGUAGE: SUPPLEMENT II, by Mencken; STILLMEADOW KITCHEN, by Taber; NEXT DEVELOPMENT IN MAN, by Whyte; COMMUNISM AND THE CONSCIENCE OF THE WEST, by Sheen.

THE SONG OF THE FLEA, by Gerald Kersh, is a story of London's underworld. A forgotten pawn ticket starts the hero off on a strange odyssey. The violent and memorable characters, steeped in their own misery, reflect strongly the wretchedness of mankind and the dilemma of their particular age.

MERCHANT OF VALOR, by Clarence Buddington Kelland, is lively historical romance of Florence in the days of the warring Medicis. The hero is Peter Carew, young son of a London wool merchant, who suddenly finds himself involved in the turbulent wars and intrigues of Italy; the heroine is Betsy, heiress of the noble Albizzi family, victims of the Medici.

I THEE WED, by Gilbert Gabriel, is historical romance in a lighter vein. French aristocrats fleeing the Revolution founded the little log-cabin village of Azylum on the Susquehanna river as a hiding place for the imprisoned queen, Marie Antoinette. An American woodsman, Major Ruff, and a Parisian actress who resembles the queen are the leading characters.

Other fiction titles: WITHIN THE HARBOR, by Bassett; ILL MET IN MEXICO, by Russell.

Piles Are Never "Mild"

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formation without tendency to heal themselves; instead, they are likely, if neglected to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, billiousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief—written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Why not call and learn of this method? The examination is free.

Russia Building Dirigibles, Rosendahl Tells Committee

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Vice Admiral Charles E. Rosendahl, retired, America's top expert on lighter-than-air craft has revealed that Russia is working on dirigibles, possibly for use in the Arctic.

He said this country, which abandoned dirigibles after the Macon crashed in 1935, should lose no time getting back into the field.

Rosendahl testified before the House committee on merchant marine. He said six dirigibles, 50 per cent larger than the Macon, should be built at once and put into commercial operation over both oceans.

Rosendahl, who directed the navy's lighter-than-air work from 1923 through World War II, said helium-filled dirigibles can be safe, practical and very helpful in wartime.

Rosendahl said Russia has access in Siberia to the world's only known practical supply of helium outside the United States. Helium, which won't burn, is the safest lifting gas for lighter-than-air craft.

"The Russians are known to be interested in airships," Rosendahl testified. "We can't say exactly what they are doing . . .

"I have been told they have considered use of airships in the Arctic, because of their long cruising ability. Some dirigibles have been seen in Russia and have been reported in the press . . .

"As long ago as 1937, when I was commanding officer at Lakehurst, N. J., a Russian delegation visited the naval air station, while the wreck of the German ship Hindenburg lay on the ground.

"They wanted to talk to everyone in the United States who knew anything about lighter-than-air craft. They even wanted to buy the wreckage."

Steel Price Change Seen

CLEVELAND —(AP)— General Motors has provided the steel industry with an excuse to revise wages and prices by its recent pay raises, the magazine Steel said today.

But whether steel makers will do that remains unknown, it added.

"While steel producers are noncommittal on the GM move there is considerable doubt as to whether they can maintain industry's anti-inflation program — holding the line on wages and cutting prices," said Steel.

"However, the way is clear for the steel industry to make revisions in both wages and prices.

"At the time U. S. Steel made its anti-inflation announcement it emphasized the program was an experiment subject to any changes later seen necessary."

250 Expected At 4-H Picnic

More than 250 Richland county 4-H club advisers and officers are expected for the annual conference and picnic Saturday. The affair is sponsored by the extension service.

The program will begin at 10 a. m. in the Central Methodist church, Park Avenue West and Sycamore street, with group discussions. A general assembly will follow.

Social dramas, pertaining to 4-H club problems, will be enacted. Officers of the clubs will be installed.

About noon the group will go to South Park for a picnic lunch and recreation.

Richland county has 55 clubs.

Defense Program to Cut Down Industrial Aid to Europe

WASHINGTON —(UP)— The national defense program will cut into industrial allocations for European recovery, Glenn H. Craig, acting director of ECA's industry division, said today.

"It will affect us all down the line," he said in an interview, "but just how much we have no way of knowing at the present time."

He was talking about the plans of the Economic Cooperation administration for its industry division to speed to the 16 nations of Western Europe and to China such recovery items as finished steel, freight cars, steel manufacturing equipment, electrical supplies and equipment, aluminum, copper and carbon black.

Those products, along with small quantities of textiles, hides, skins, leather and sulphur, comprise the bulk of goods which the industry division has planned for European recovery during the first period ending July 1.

Already it has allocated quantities of petroleum, coal, and cotton to some nations of Europe and to China.

Craig, on leave from the state department, said that emphasis during the second ECA quarter—July through September—would be on more machinery to help increase European production.

"We will, however, get the machinery outside of the United States wherever we can to ease the drain on the domestic economy," he said. "We can get certain types from Canada, Italy, Germany and Belgium."

Craig said that until the defense program — including the newly authorized 70-group air force—has been defined, it will not be possible to say how much ECA will have to sacrifice.

"But there is no question that the aircraft program will cut into our aluminum plans to some extent," he said. "Some aluminum, however, will be procured from Canada."

Want Figures On Campaign

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—Oregon Democrats said Saturday they were planning action to force Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Harold E. Stassen to file expense statements for their Oregon campaign.

Dewey, who won in the recent primary vote for Oregon's Republican presidential preference, has been accused by Stassen of spending $250,000 in the state campaign. Dewey retorted his expenses were "only a fraction" of that sum.

Both candidates spent weeks in their campaign of the state.

Candidates for state and local offices are required to file expense statements, but the law has no specific requirement that candidates in the presidential preference primary must do so.

Judge Says Cry of Libel Should Not Stifle Justifiable Criticism

WASHINGTON—There is a wicked humor in both the civil rights program proposed by President Truman and the states' rights campaign which has been organized by the deep south Democrats by way of opposition.

No party in our national politics has ever been more contemptuous of civil rights and of human rights, which are more sensitive and important, than the Democratic party of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his successor, Harry Truman.

No private society, whether the Ku Klux Klan or the Molly McGuires, ever killed or caused the death by violence of more people than have lost their lives in riots fomented and conducted by the party's organized auxiliary of labor unions.

No lawless element ever destroyed as much property except in civil war.

Years ago, when lynchings were more common in the southern and western states and white men as well as Negroes were victims, those who read of such incidents sometimes got angry at the conduct of sheriffs, constables and jailers.

Incidentally, such outbreaks were much less frequent at their worst than riots of unions have been since about 1934. Moreover, they were invariably spontaneous. There was a nasty murder or a revolting outrage against some woman in a small community.

In hot blood, then, the chivalry of the town gathered at the saloon and resolved to remove a blot from the fair name of the crossroads. Most of the lynchees were guilty as charged and the denial of formal, legal trial was the main point of objection.

It does seem, however, that most of those who, in recent years, have protested with the noisiest indignation against this mockery of justice were insincere. Many of the same persons, including the late Roosevelt and now Mr. Truman, have been absolutely serene in the presence of brutalities no less outrageous committed by their own political proteges under political license from their party.

As I was recalling, there was a note of nasty defiance in the little lynching stories reporting that the officers of the law had been taken unaware, outnumbered and overpowered. Now and again one hawk-faced sheriff, with tobacco on his mustaches and a tin badge drooping from his faded shirt, would show a big, bone-handled revolver and, leaning over the picket fence in front of the jail, would say, "Which is the one is going to take the prisoner away from me?"

Now and again, a sheriff would stand off such a mob, proving that a good man could do it, but usually the scenario closed with a body hanging from the railroad bridge or a tree just out of town.

The story always was that strangers had filtered into town, done the job and slunk away. Anyway, the lynchers never could be identified and prosecutors didn't ever bother grand juries with futile forms.

But now, with lynchings reduced to one a year in the south, Mr. Truman tells Congress that "a specific federal measure is needed to deal with the crime of lynching, against which I cannot speak too strongly," about the same time that C. I. O. rioters are mobbing citizens, marauding and pillaging, overturning automobiles and abducting men from their work in packing plants. These were not spontaneous outbreaks. They were planned and directed.

The police and sheriffs in these communities quit cold in the presence of the mobs. Like the southern cops, they had their duty to kill if necessary to uphold the law but they didn't even aim a blow of a nightstick. On the contrary, the mobs chased them and, in most cases, they ran. The rioters were well-known local and neighborhood people, yet no arrests were made or indictments voted.

You will find that, in the congressional meaning of the word, a "lynching" is not necessarily fatal. A typical anti-lynching bill, H. R. 223, says that "serious bodily injury" inflicted by a mob shall be a lynching.

However this typical anti-lynching bill, in typical fashion, says, "lynching shall not include violence occurring during the course of picketing or boycotting, incidental to any labor dispute."

Thus the Minnesota officers who flinched before the CIO rioters at the packing houses were not guilty of any crime in the view of the national government, whereas a negligent southern sheriff is guilty of a felony and the county which employs him would be liable for damages of from $2,000 to $10,000 to the heirs of each victim of a fatal lynching or to the lynchee himself should he escape with his life.

Literally thousands of innocent citizens have been beaten up, abducted and injured in automobiles crowded off the roads by members of the union mobs under the patronage of the Democratic party. But we find not only indifference to their damage and to the injustice of such lawless violence but a specific provision that the cops and the communities which willfully fail to protect them shall be excused from federal penalty.

Three Suits To Be Heard This Week

One Accident Case Scheduled

Three suits, one of them filed as the result of an automobile accident, have been set for hearing this week in common pleas court, C. A. McKinley, assignment clerk reported. All will be heard by juries.

Set for 9 a. m. Tuesday is an action filed against the Industrial Commission of Ohio by Charles Truly, 144 Oak street.

Truly says he was struck by a train while employed by J. C. O'Connor and Sons, which resulted in a heart disability. The suit is an appeal from an action of the commission denying compensation.

He asks for compensation for disability under the Workmen's Compensation law. His attorneys are Cowan and Adams and H. M. Rust.

In an action set for Wednesday at 9 a. m. the Erie Railroad seeks payment of freight car demurrage charges from Kent Rummel of the Rummel Coal company.

The railroad seeks $811.80 in such charges, which it claims from April 30, 1945. The petition alleges that Rummel failed to unload 166 carloads of coal "promptly and properly." Attorney C. H. Henkel represents the railroad, while Rummel is represented by Attorneys Anderson, Will and O'Donnell.

SUES AFTER CRASH

Set for Thursday at 9 a. m. is a $15,000 damage action brought on behalf of Norma Buzzard, a minor, by her father, Floyd Buzzard, Mansfield, R. D. 3.

Named defendants are Richard and Elizabeth Holloway, 570 West Third street, and Donald F. Minnie, 338½ Park Avenue West.

The defendant says she was a passenger in a car which struck a truck parked on Park Avenue West, east of Sycamore street on the night of Dec. 29, 1945.

She said the defendants were negligent in parking the truck at that spot without lights. Her petition also cites a municipal ordinance which prohibits parking of a vehicle that is more than seven feet wide for a longer period than loading or unloading requires.

Her attorneys are Anderson, Will and O'Donnell, while the defendants are represented by Weldon and Huston.

The Origin of 'Dead Line'

Mansfielder Finds Precedent For War Crime Trials

(Editor's Note—A few years ago, Ernest J. Wesson, 610 Scholl road, discovered during his historical research that the monument in Central Park commemorating the first mention of Abraham Lincoln for the presidency is probably a monument to a newspaperman's hoax. Wesson has now uncovered another unusual facet of history which he has passed along to the Library of Congress. Here is a report on his latest discovery).

* * *

Mansfield historian Ernest J. Wesson has uncovered a legal precedent for the war crimes trials at Nuernberg and Tokyo, according to the May 24 issue of the Information Bulletin of the Library of Congress.

An article by David C. Mearns, entitled "From Bad to Wirz," reports Wesson's gift to the Congressional library of manuscripts that show measures taken by the defense in the post-Civil War trial of Henry Wirz, former commandant of the notorious Andersonville Confederate prison.

The manuscripts were found by Wesson among the papers of James William Denver who lived from 1817 to 1892 and for whom the capital city of Colorado was named.

Denver was a native of Virginia, captain in the war with Mexico, a representative in Congress from California, Commissioner of Indian Affairs and Governor of Kansas Territory. Until 1863 he held the rank of Brigadier General of Volunteers, and, after Appomattox, for a time practised law in Washington as a member of the firm of Hughes, Denver and Peck.

In 1865, they were retained to represent Henry Wirz, late a captain and assistant adjutant general in the Army of the Confederated States of America, who was tried before a military commission for outrages as Commandant of Andersonville Prison.

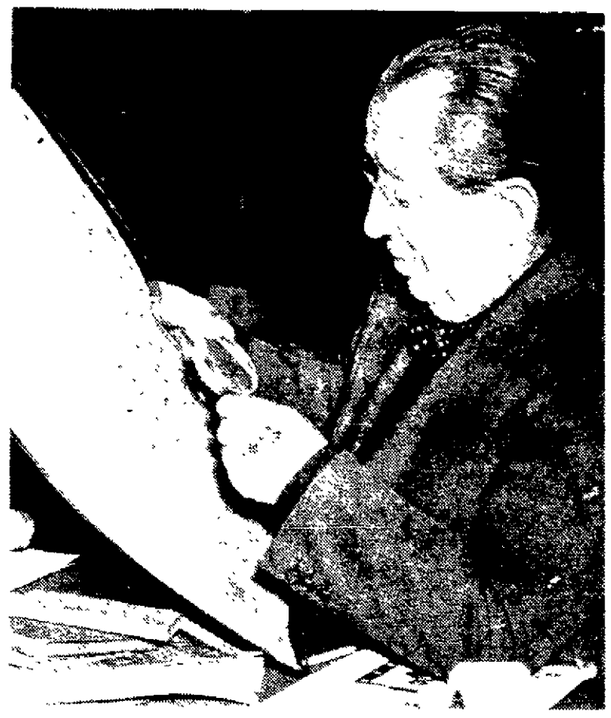
According to the fourteen specifications "the said Henry Wirz" fall upon, pass over or under or across the said 'dead line.'"

When the trial re-opened on Aug. 24th, it was announced that conducted himself in a manner which anteceded the other beasts of Belsen, Buchenwald, Nordhausen and Dachau.

Among the foul crimes for which Henry Wirz stood accused was this:

"He, the said Wirz, still wickedly pursuing his evil purpose, did establish and cause to be designated within the prison enclosure containing said prisoners, a "dead line," being a line around the inn face of the stockade, or wall . . . and about twenty feet distant from and within said stockade; and having so established said dead line, which was in many places an imaginary line, and in many other places marked by insecure and shifting strips of boards nailed upon the top of small and insecure stakes or posts, he, the said Henry Wirz, instructed the prison guard stationed around the top of said stockade to fire upon and kill any of the prisoners aforesaid who might touch,



WESSON . . . makes another historical discovery

The compilers of A Dictionary of American English have traced the origin of dead line, with its modern connotation, to Andersonville.

Messrs. Hughes, Denver and Peck had withdrawn from the case. Other attorneys took over the defense. General Denver had not personally appeared before the Commission. The findings of the Commission were issued on Nov. 6, when Wirz was found guilty. Four days later he was hanged in the prison yard.

Bus Firm Franchise Up Again

Marion Light to Be Considered

The presentation of a bill establishing daylight saving time in Mansfield and the second, and perhaps, final reading of a measure renewing the Mansfield Rapid Transit company's franchise for 15 years highlight tomorrow's city council meeting calendar.

The "fast time" bill will be offered to council by Harry Holingsworth. The measure was voted upon once before on March 22 when it was defeated by a vote of 6 to 3. Since then council has received a number of petitions and letters demanding an immediate change.

The bus franchise ordinance was given a first reading May 19 and comes up for a second tomorrow. The measure was expected to be up for final passage on May 19, but council decided to "let the public voice its sentiments" before taking a final vote on the measure.

The immediate granting of a renewal is opposed by Walter J. Burghard jr., owner of the Yellow Stripe Cab company who said he may be able to make the city a better offer "within a year." It is possible, however, that the third reading will be dispensed with and the measure voted on tomorrow.

Council is also scheduled to hear the second reading of the bond ordinance authorizing the floating of the $1,200,000 worth of second mortgage revenue bonds. The money will be used to finance the completion of the Clear Fork water works project.

The bonds have already been sold to Braun, Bosworth and company, Toledo. A paying agent and trustee for the bonds have yet to be named and council will probably make the award tomorrow.

SUBMITS LOW BID

Figures compiled by City Auditor Paul Kelley showed that the Citizens National Bank and Trust company submitted the lowest bid to act as paying agent and submitted the same bid as the Farmers Savings and Trust company to act as trustees for the bonds. The low paying agent bid was $280 and the trustee bids were $1,330.

Other items that will be up for consideration include the installation of a traffic light at Marion and Bartley avenues and an ordinance forbidding trucks weighing more than 12 tons to travel on Newman street, between Orange street north to the junction of Newman and Wayne streets.

Bills authorizing the hiring of a superintendent of sanitary sewage at $2,500 and an additional mason to construct manholes are also on the calendar.

Other items:

A bill authorizing the hiring of five more firemen and two more captains for the No. 5 station now under construction.

An appropriation of $189 for the purchase of six low pressure fog nozzles for the fire department.

Father, Son Are Beaten

Report Being Hit By Auto Robber

Widd Mullett, rear of 118 East Temple court, and his son, Journal, of Boyle road, suffered injuries Saturday night about 9:40 p. m., when they surprised someone tampering with the son's car parked at the Temple court address, police reported.

Their unknown assailant struck them with a bottle and stones. They were treated for cuts and bruises at Mansfield General hospital and released.

Police at 11:05 p. m. mere called again when Journal reported that the assailant was in the vicinity of the house. Police searched the area, but found no suspects.

Early Sunday Mullett told police the car had been ransacked between the time he surprised the tamperer of the car and 2 a. m.

Stolen were a dress, a man's suit, a baby's dress, two child's dresses, a shirt, all valued at $78.50.

Rose Weber Dies At 75

SHELBY—Mrs. Rose Weber, 75, died at Memorial hospital here early Sunday after an illness of one year. Her home was at 29 South Gamble street.

Surviving are four sons, Henry and Robert, Shelby; Julius, 115 Helen avenue, Mansfield; and Adolph, Long Beach, Calif.; three daughters, Mrs. Jack Imhoff and Mrs. Kenneth Hall, Shelby; and Mrs. J. V. Eberly, Zanesville; 13 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Other Mansfield relatives of Mrs. Weber are Julius, president of the Renner and Weber brewing company, and Miss Ida Weber, secretary-treasurer of the same firm, who were brother and sister of Mrs. Weber's late husband, Adolph.

She was a member of the Most Pure Heart of Mary Catholic church, Shelby, where services will be conducted at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday by Rev. Michael A. McFadden. Friends may call at the Dye Funeral home. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Traffic Crash Brings Arrest

A traffic mishap Saturday resulted in the arrest of Virgil Edwood Chaney, 225 Seventh avenue, on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, police reported.

Police said the truck Chaney was driving struck the car of G. H. Shrack, 1060 Park avenue west, when Shrack stopped at the stop sign at Park avenue west and West Park drive. Both were going west.

Both cars were damaged.

Also arrested for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol was Joseph F. Narring, Mansfield, R. D. 4, the State Highway patrol reported.

Narring was arrested on U. S. Route 42 at Central avenue at 5:45 p. m. Saturday.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Don Weiland, 362 Lexington avenue, told police last night his bicycle was stolen from in front of St. Peter's Catholic church where he had parked it.

'Nature Boy' Sleeps Under Brooklyn Tree

NEW YORK—(AP)—Eden Ahbez is climbing into his sleeping bag under a tree that grows in Brooklyn rather than beneath the tree in Central park his al fresco heart desired.

Ahbez is the 37-year-old Hollywood mystic who says he wrote the strangely simple new song, "Nature Boy." His claim is being legally questioned by a Yiddish theater actor who is suing for an unusual percentage of the tune's earnings—100 per cent.

There was some difference of opinion on his arrival here as to the feasibility of Ahbez' snoozing in Central park; the police didn't think much of the idea, mostly for his own protection.

So Eden packed his sleeping bag to Brooklyn, where an actor friend, Jerry Rahm, has a house with a terrace and a tree under which a student of Yoga might slumber.

Whatever direction the royalties from "Nature Boy" take, to Ahbez or his suing Yiddish theater actor, they stand to total more than any other popular tune in the 1948 music business year.

As to this writing, it leads all classifications of the popular music trade—in sheet music sales, juke box activity, disc jockey performances, disc jockey requests, record sales, and in that dependable bellwether of popularity, radio comedians' jokes.

REMAINS UNCHANGED

What had all this popularity done to Ahbez, I asked. Has it speeded up his relaxed, mystical, outdoor existence?

"Not at all," he said. "Some people who find success in the world are carried away by it. I found my happiness within myself long before this happened."

Ahbez says he wrote two versions of "Nature Boy," classical and popular. The classical is in four movements bearing simple numerical designation. The popular is separated into "I'm a Child of Nature," "The Brother Song," "Lovewise," and "My Nirvana."

Darryl Zanuck, he said, is interested in them for picture purposes.

"Nirvana," he said, will be the name of the child he and his wife Anna expect in October—"if it's a girl."

"Nirvana is the Hindu word for 'supreme happiness'," Ahbez explained. "If it's a boy, we'll call him 'Tatha,' which means 'fully enlightened soul.' I think you should give your child the most beautiful name you are conscious of."

AHEPA Picks Its Delegates

Delegates and alternates of the Mansfield chapter of the Order of Ahepa elected to attend the district convention in Akron, June 26 through 28, were announced Saturday.

Delegates are James Georgopulos, Mansfield; George H. Davis, Bucyrus; Charles Bizios, Mt. Vernon; and Charles Settos, Marion.

Alternates include Peter Kaler, Paul Deleanides and Harry Sarafis, all of Mansfield, and William Logas, Marion.

PURSE FOUND

Robert Funk of Greenwich turned over to police yesterday a woman's black plastic purse, which he reported finding one mile east of the Catalina Night club on U. S. Route 42. Police said the name of a "Betty Veils, Trailer City" appeared in a letter found in the purse.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY—

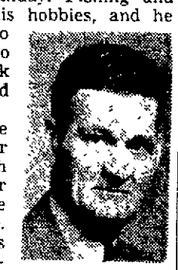
James Brownscombe, proprietor of the Evergreens cafeteria, probably is thinking about a fishing trip to Canada today as he observes his birthday. Fishing and hunting are his hobbies, and he plans to go north soon to try his luck with rod and reel.



Brownscombe

He will have a quiet dinner at home with his family, after a full day at the Legion home. Brownscombe is a former commander and senior vice-commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a past junior vice-commander of the American Legion, former treasurer of the Mansfield Disabled American Veterans, and he was assistant chairman of the Richland County Civic Victory committee during the last war.

He is a member of the First Lutheran church and is a former president of the Men's Bible class.

He was born in Morristown, England, and lived in Elwood, Ind., before coming to Mansfield in 1920.

The News-Journal also offers congratulations to Paul J. Schiska, Richland Blue Print Service, who also is celebrating his birthday anniversary today.

15 to Attend Chicago Meet

Eight Mansfielders will be among the 15 Mansfield-district representatives to the Prudential Insurance company's regional conference in Chicago, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mansfielders will be: W. V. McIlyar, Marion E. Hetler, Gordon G. Eusey, Richard Nixon, D. H. Hurlow, Ward Leister, C. M. Preiss and M. S. Griner. The delegation also will include representatives from the Galion, Bucyrus and Marion offices.

More than 450 key field personnel from company offices in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan are to participate in the two-day meeting held to familiarize the field organization with sales and service procedures for the ensuing year.

Louis H. Schmidt, second vice president of the company, will preside.

Rites for Gibson Infant Wednesday

Funeral services for Louis Cardell Gibson, three-and-one-half-year-old son of Andrew Gibson, 121 Lafayette avenue, will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Shiloh Baptist church, with Rev. A. J. Payne officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

The child died Saturday night after a six-week illness. The body is at the Geiger funeral home where friends may call until Wednesday noon.

Four Mansfield World War II veterans took part in the memorial services at the Youth For Christ meeting Saturday night in the John Simpson Junior high school auditorium.

The veterans in the memorial service were, Jack Shellhaas, Roger Lenehan, Harold Heilman, and James Hunter. On the auditorium stage a miniature cross composed of many candles fastened to a white wooden cross illuminated the still forms of the veterans who stood at attention.

Dr. William E. Devol, medical missionary to China, addressed the meeting on "Positive Living."

In his message, Dr. Devol said, "In our supposedly Christian land, one thousand churches are closing each year, 37 million young people have never heard the gospel, and most astounding of all, there are four million criminals at large today, which represents an even larger number than that of enrolled college students.

Thousands More Flee From Homes

New Areas Hit By High Water

SEATTLE —(AP)— The bulging Columbia river and its tributaries spread new destruction for 100 miles down through central Washington state today as the death toll in the Pacific Northwest floods climbed to 16.

Worst hit was Okanogan county in the northern part of the state where a stream wrecked one-fourth of a village of 200 and carried a flood-fighter to his death.

Several thousand were homeless today over the newly-ravaged area as the steadily rising waters surrounded their places.

The high waters were heading on toward Portland where they were expected to put water into one section of the business district.

The wrecked village in Okanogan county was Conconully. Waters of Salmon Creek, fed by the melting of deep snows in the mountains and heavy rains, hit the town. Sheriff's officers said 25 per cent of its buildings were upset or heavily damaged.

One resident died in the river. He was Cy Walters, 70, one of several men who were sandbagging the approaches of a bridge and were catapulted into the river when the bank gave way. The rest escaped.

Two thousand more were estimated homeless in Okanogan county alone. Sheriff's officers said all roads into the Okanogan valley were either impassable or studded with detour signs. All of the Methow valley was described as impassable.

BRIDGES WASHED OUT

Several bridges in the county were reported washed out or threatened.

Three hundred were driven from their homes in Omak and Okanogan, the two largest cities in the county. Workers were holding their own against the waters in Oroville. Tonasket, Winthrop and Twisp. But Oroville was without power. Tonasket had no phone connection with the outside. Winthrop was isolated both by road and phone and Twisp had a single phone line to the outside.

Downriver, authorities gave these reports:

Kennewick—One thousand driven from their cabins and homes in low lying sections. Businesses evacuated in the same areas. City water supply cut off and residents asked to conserve supplies from auxiliary sources. Roads to sister city of Pasco nearly impassable.

Pasco — A score of homes flooded. Three low-lying streets under water. Workers fighting to save the city water system as well as the pumping plant for a large irrigation system and similar pumping plants for smaller irrigation projects.

Richland — Thousands of construction workers forced to detour 40 to 80 miles from Pasco and Kennewick to reach their jobs at the Hanford Atomic Energy plant.

Health authorities were distributing vaccine over the area to inoculate against typhoid. Drinking water was being boiled in many places to prevent epidemics. National guardsmen were called into service as needed to help in flood control.

Other states and Canada also were still battling against the abnormal flood stages which river forecasters said may last a month.

395th Infantry Plans Reunion

The 395th Infantry association will hold its first annual reunion Aug. 27 through 29 in the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati. Former members of the regiment are asked to contact Harry M. Oney, 3140 Edwards road, Cincinnati regarding the affair. The 395th regiment of the 99th Division was one of the first regiments to clear the Siegfried Line and cross the Rhine river.

But Frank Monaghan Sliced Through It

Red Tape Besieged Freedom Train

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK—Frank Monaghan had a train to make. He had to make it with a lot of baggage. He made it, but almost blew a fuse en route.

The train was the Freedom Train now in a 12-month tour of the nation. The baggage was documents representing about 700 years of man's struggle for democracy.

Dr. Monaghan was chiefly responsible for getting the 125 priceless documents together. Historian and former Yale professor, he went to work for the train's sponsor, the American Heritage Foundation, late last July. At first it was planned to carry facsimiles of famous manuscripts on the 33,000-mile journey. Then it was decided to use originals wherever possible.

About half the papers were to come from the Library of Congress and the National Archives, and that was comparatively easy. The other half would come from state historical societies and various private groups and individuals. This frequently wasn't easy.

Dr. Monaghan had known about red tape. During the war, he was an air force colonel who headed a secret project to analyze the possibility of Germany being knocked out by air action alone (the answer was no). Now, he has a book out "Heritage of Freedom," which tells the history and significance of each document aboard the train. But as to their most recent history, he says:

"It kept me awake nights, but thank God not a single item was mislaid, damaged or lost. We got most of what we were after. No one turned us down flatly. Where we failed or had difficulty it was due to a combination of circumstances, and the circumstances often were harrowing."

One of those "combinations" meant that a certain famous colonial document is not on the train now. The paper was in the local state archives, which was willing to lend it, but state law prohibited its removal from the state.

After much arranging, the state legislature passed a special law permitting the document's removal. Everybody concerned was all ready to let it go including the governor. Then the bill went to him for his signature. He vetoed it by mistake. There wasn't enough time left to start the whole thing over again.

The original manuscript of Woodrow Wilson's first inaugural address involved a classic snafu. The document came from Princeton university and made the Freedom Train only two hours before it left Washington for Philadelphia, where the grand tour began officially.

Meanwhile, an aide happened to hear Dr. Monaghan say he would prefer to have the original Covenant of the League of Nations as an example of Wilson's work. This involved permission from the Library of Congress and the widow of the World War I president.

While these arrangements were being made, the aide, without telling anybody, went ahead and removed the Wilson inaugural. The train left Philadelphia without it and traveled four days with an empty case.

"The empty case," says Dr. Managhan, "attracted more attention than the Declaration of Independence. There was lots of hot speculation over our motives in leaving Wilson out. But we finally got the Covenant draft in."

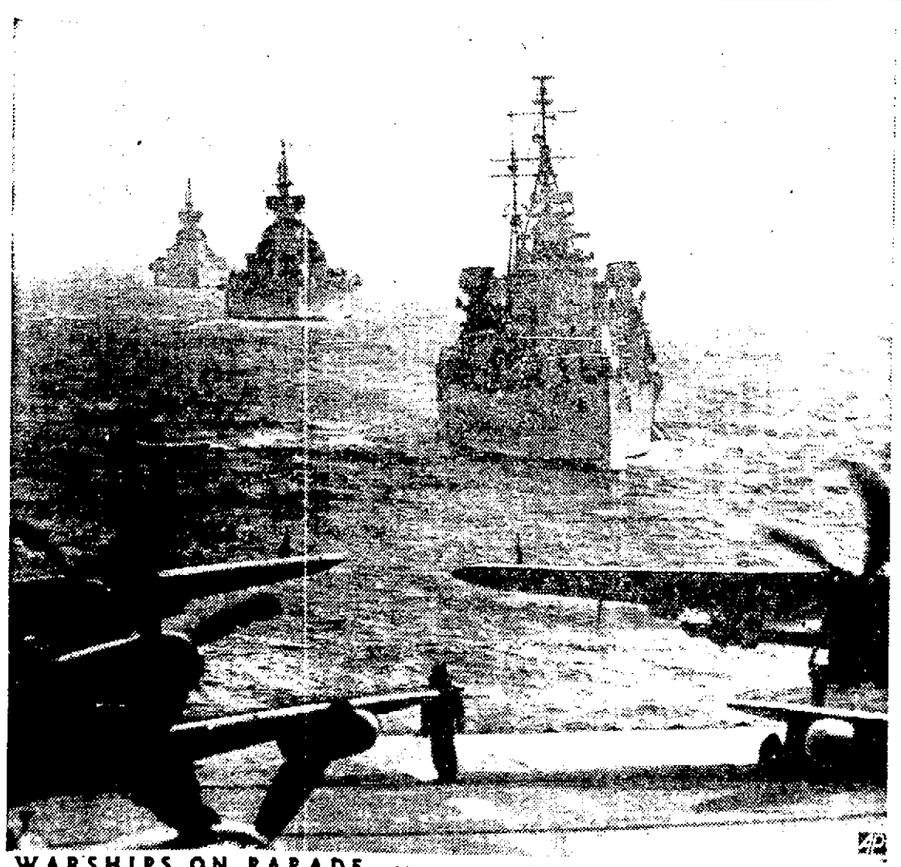
DUTCH SETTING — Norma Kemper (left) and Norma Lucas, both 11, look at blooms at Holland, Mich., during tulip festival. Dutch windmill provides picturesque backdrop.



WARSHIPS ON PARADE — Aircraft crowd after end of flight deck of H.M.S. Implacable as the 23,000-ton British carrier heads into the open sea in exercises off coast of Scotland. Ships in line are (front to rear): H.M.S. Superb, 8,000-ton cruiser; H.M.S. Anson, and H.M.S. Howe, both battleships of 35,000 tons. Ships will cruise to West Indies next Autumn.

Carelessness Makes Shoes Cost More

CINCINNATI—(INS)—The price of the nation's shoes inches upward every time bossy backs into a barb wire fence.

The major part of the increase comes from the careless handling of livestock, according to Dr. Fred O'Flaherty, director of the Tanners' Council of America laboratory.

The laboratory is the only one of its kind in the United States to conduct research for the tanning and leather industry.

Livestock are injured on farms or pastures causing some blemishes to the hide. Dr. O'Flaherty, however, said that careless handling on the part of shippers and farmers adds millions of dollars each year to the price of shoes.

He pointed out that the tanners buy hides with no way of determining whether they are damaged or not. The price of leather goods must therefore make up for the loss in damaged hides.

Greek Raids 'Successful'

ATHENS—(AP)—Premier Themistokles Sophoulis said Saturday Greek army operations against guerrillas in the last two months had been highly successful.

In a statement he said there would be no "deviation" from present military plans. These plans were prepared with the help of an American military mission and call for operations largely in northern Greece.

When he said there would be no "deviation" Sophoulis probably was taking note, political sources said, of progressive trouble in parliament which reassembles June 1.

Army Hopes To Improve 'Peg-Fitting'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Round pegs in round holes and square in square—that's how the army plans to place technical specialists if another war comes.

In the last war expert welders often drove trucks, truck drivers tested radio tubes, tube testers strung barrage balloons.

But in the next, if a new scheme already operating is carried out successfully, civilian tube testers will find themselves testing tubes and truck drivers driving trucks.

The Army's Affiliation program (AFPRO) is based on the idea of civilian organizations (steel companies, automotive and industries, chemical plants, police departments, laundries, fire-fighters, etc.) "sponsoring" key service-type units of the Organized Reserve Corps (ORC).

ORC is one of three components of the Army of the United States. The other two are the regular army and the national guard.

Already 350 affiliated units have been activated and the army has signed more than twice that number of agreements with civilian organizations. The army says it will not estimate how many individuals are in the program. Size of units runs from five or six to 1,000 men per unit.

The units' job in time of awr will be to support the combat arms of the ground and air forces.

AFPRO has been tried before but never on anything like the scale planned and partly in effect today.

Bed-Smoking Ban Proposed

CHILLICOTHE —(INS)— Chillicothe city councilmen would like to do something about the habit of smoking in bed.

The council is considering a proposed ordinance to make the dangerous habit a punishable offense.

Only one thing worries members—how would they enforce the ordinance. It has been referred to a committee for study.

43—Business Opportunities

Mansfield Auto Wash
Liquidating partnership, includes all the land, building and equipment. Very good income opportunity for one or two persons. Priced for quick sale reduced to $12,500. 152 Distl Ave.

Hobby Shop
Here is a business that will fascinate young and old. Located on the second floor right in the heart of Mansfield. Sales and business room and stock room, extra room on third floor can be used for living quarters or other purposes. Lease can be arranged to suit buyers of business at $25 per month rent. Netted $7,000 profit last year. Will sell at inventory. Owner has other interests.

A Real Opportunity
Woodworking shop fully equipped for any type of item made from wood. Includes business established in cabinets and store fixtures since 1938. Ford ½ ton truck. All machinery and equipment, real estate. Good size plot of ground. Present building consists of office and display room, stock room and production room, new heating room which produces automatic heat for entire buildings. You could not equip this shop for the asking price on everything. Owner is sick and would consider selling business separate and give lease on real estate. I can work out a nice arrangement for interested party.

News Stand
News stand, cigar store, pipes, novelty, etc. Located right down town next to theater. Books will show a handsome profit. Good lease can be arranged on business room. Owner has other interests and will sell at inventory.

Batista to Attempt Comeback

Cubans Go to Polls Tomorrow

By BEN F. MEYER

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Fulgencio Batista, Cuba's former strong man, is trying for a political comeback in the June 1 elections.

Tomorrow, Cuba elects a president, a vice president, a full senate of 54, half or 70 members of the house, and six governors.

Presidents are ineligible for re-election in Cuba until after eight years. Batista is running for senator. Obviously, he hopes to get back into the political swim and run for president in 1952. Batista finished his presidential term Oct. 10, 1944 and went into exile in Florida.

He now lives in Daytona Beach, and conducts his campaign from there by mail, cable, long distance telephone and through recorded speeches. Personal messengers fly back and forth to keep him posted.

Batista claims the Cuban government will not guarantee his safety if he returns to Cuba. The government's attitude is that Cuba is at peace, and that the doors are open to any Cuban to come home whenever he so desires. It is evident, however, that Batista feels his welcome might be unpleasant.

Batista rose to power in the days following the fall of President Gerardo Machado's government in 1933. He engineered a "sergeants' revolution" and with other non-commissioned officers took over the government. Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin, a university professor and physician, was called to the presidency but his government failed and he went into exile in Miami.

GRAU COMES BACK

In the 1944 presidential campaign, Grau evened up the score. He ran for president. Batista's candidate was Carlos Saladrigas the prime minister, who had the support of the administration machine, but Grau won. Batista won praises of the press for a fair election.

There was only one slight flurry. Batista's ex-police chief, Manuel Benitez, threatened a revolution, evidently without consulting Batista. He got a tongue-lashing from Batista, who bundled him off to Miami.

Political observers said one of the reasons Batista lost the 1944 election was that he had become over-confident. If this is true Batista is not making the same mistake twice. He is conducting a very vigorous campaign. Even in Havana, radio stations, newspapers and posters carry his campaign speeches. He is running for senator in the province of Las Villas, east of Havana. Newspapers in the province are being used extensively.

The 1944 election saw the "ins" take a licking. Batista hopes the same thing will happen this year.

President Grau is backing Carlos Prio for president. Prio an anti-communist senator is the nominee of an alliance of the Authentic Cuban Revolutionary party and the Republican party.

Batista is in the opposition camp, a coalition of liberal and democratic parties. Their presidential nominee is Dr. Ricardo Nunez Portuondo. In the same camp, as a candidate for governor of Havana Province, is Batista's brother, Panchin, now mayor of nearby Marinanao, a Havana suburb.

The Democratic-Liberal coalition is considered a rightist party, not quite conservative enough to be called conservative. Normally the Republican party has been on the conservative side, but in this campaign, as in 1944, it is aligned with the Revolutionary, or Leftist party.

Prio is a former cabinet minister. As minister of labor under Grau, he ousted communists from top positions in the Cuban confederation of workers. He has campaigned for higher living standards, continuation of the many million dollar public works program Grau instituted and for social security, farm and labor reforms.

Nunez, famed Cuban surgeon has attacked what he calls "wasteful public works projects" says the government needs "ability, honesty and energy." He denied opponents' charges he favored a Machado, dictator-type government.

Polls open in Cuba at 8 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. eastern standard time. There is no machinery for gathering election results such as the newspapers provide in the U. S. It may be June 2 or June 3 before the result is known.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS—Elder Mervin C. Sharp (left) and Elder Grant Wilson take time out between numbers. At right is Elder Robert Rowan "giving out" with a few hot licks on the drums.

Young Missionaries Are Musical

Swing Band Spreads Mormon Doctrine

WATERLOO, Ia — (CP) — Fourteen young Mormons from the west believe swing music with a solid beat is the best background for an approach to religious conversion.

They call their competent musical organization the First Missionary Swing band—and it probably is.

Each of the youngsters (average age, 22), is a volunteer missionary travelling at his own expense, pledged to spread the Mormon doctrine, secure converts and strengthen the spirit in outlying Mormon communities.

They ask no money for their appearances at dances and concerts. Expenses of the tour are strictly an individual responsibility.

There is nothing sanctimonious about the music they play or the crowds who dance to it. Liquor and tobacco are unwelcome, but the Lattar Day Saints prefer a smile to a frown, and their easy good nature is contagious.

The band leader is Elder Mervin C. Sharp (no pun intended), a 26-year-old music teacher from Preston, Idaho, who plays sax and clarinet.

Elder Grant Wilson, Driggs, Id., plays first trumpet and directs "tracting," the program of explaining Mormonism and seeking converts through house-to-house canvassing.

This program is diligently applied in each town where the band stops for a concert or dance. Travelling in pairs the group does its tracting for a week or 10 days after making their musical debut.

TRAVELS BY AUTO

The band travels by automobile, part of the equipment being a 1928 Oakland, euphemistically dubbed "Dreamboat." Dreamboat's owner is Morris Young, trumpeter from Reno, Nev., who bought the car from an elderly couple in Wisconsin.

The Saints learn a lot about human relations while tracting, so it isn't surprising that many of the group are glib talkers when the occasion demands.

In Lansing, Mich., Young appeared in traffic court where a seven-dollar fine had been assessed against Dreamboat for a minor infraction, but the fast talking missionary beguiled the judge into reducing the amount of the fine to one dollar.

Such facility with the language is acquired through long practice, however. Stage fright is not unknown to the Saints.

When Elder Sharp took the platform for the first time in Clinton, Ill., during an open air meeting, he faced a sizable crowd. The icy fingers of the great gremlin, stage fright, clutched his throat so tightly he couldn't utter a word.

Sharp stood on the platform, large drops of perspiration forming on his brow, and tried desperately to talk. After a few minutes when he finally found his voice, the crowd had dwindled to a single amused spectator leaning nonchalantly against a building across the street.

Mormon officials of the Northern States Mission are watching the group with interest. If this unique method of religious missionary work continues as successfully as it appears to have started, the effects may be far reaching.

EXPLOSION KILLS EIGHT

ANNECY, France —(AP)— Eight workmen were killed and 15 injured seriously Saturday by a premature explosion in a tunnel they were building near Chamonix, in eastern France near the Swiss and Italian borders.

Communists Claim Election Victory In Czechoslovakia

'Yes' Votes Run Ahead Of Protests

Ballots List Single Party

PRAGUE —(AP)— Blank protest votes against Czechoslovakia's communist-led government's single parliamentary election ticket totaled more than a half-million last night with more than half the total vote counted.

However, these returns, announced at midnight, gave Premier Klement Gottwald's "Peoples' Democracy" government the majority of 'yes' votes it demanded.

There are slightly more than 8,000,000 registered voters in Czechoslovakia.

At midnight the ministry of interior had counted a total of 4,387,060 votes. An announcement said 3,606,805 government ballots were cast in Bohemia-Moravia and 659,167 in Slovakia.

Protest votes counted were: 393,342 in Bohemia-Moravia and 121,088 in Slovakia.

At that hour only 36 districts, including the Prague area, remained to be counted in Bohemia-Moravia and 22 districts in Slovakia.

DISTRICTS VARY

Several districts of Slovakia cast heavy protest votes, one amounting to 39 per cent in the Trstena district of northern Slovakia. This was over-balanced by several districts around Bratislava where nearly 100 per cent of the ballots cast were pro-government.

Several districts in Bohemia also cast almost solid votes for the hand-picked government list which could not lose. This was the case in Louny, a village in the Kladno mining district where President Eduard Benes has one of his summer homes.

Earlier, Interior Minister Vaclav Nosek said the elections were without incident. He told a radio audience that for the first time in Czech history police were not needed to patrol the polling booths.

The protest ballots were running roughly around 11 per cent all over Bohemia-Moravia and 17 per cent in Slovakia.

It appeared that some persons had managed to cast legal protest ballots, discard fake ones, and then pocket the government ballots, carrying them away from the polls with them.

Tough Labor Fights Loom

3 Major Disputes In Crucial Stage

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Three of the nation's toughest labor disputes head into crucial stages this week. They could tie the country's economy and defense plans in knots if walkouts actually occurred.

The disputes involve John L. Lewis' 400,000-soft coal miners, about 900 AFL Atomic Energy Workers at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and 190,000 members of three railroad brotherhoods, now working only because the court so ordered.

In addition to these three, the threat of a shipping strike which could stall the European aid program is in the offing. CIO contracts on all coasts expire June 15. A strike of CIO-National Maritime union members on the Great Lakes already is underway.

The Lewis case going before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough on Wednesday. General Counsel Robert N. Denham of the National Labor Relations board is seeking another injunction gainst Lewis and the United Mine Workers.

This time it is to force Lewis to bargain with the Southern Coal Producers association, representing one third of the nation's bituminous coal output

The White House will try again Tuesday to settle the railroad dispute.

Even though the three brotherhoods—the Locomotive Engineers, Firemen and Enginemen, and Switchmen—are working, their battle with the carriers over wages and operating rules remains unsettled. A strike could break out at once, if Judge Goldsborough lifted his temporary restraining order and the trains would stop running. Goldsborough will decide on June 11 whether to extend his order for the third time.

Loudonville Seniors Visit Washington

McGregor's Staff Entertains Group

(By Special Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—The senior class of Loudonville high school was pleasantly entertained on their Friday visit to the Capitol by Congressman J. Harry McGregor's two secretaries, Margaret Blummer and Doris Whitney.

McGregor, of the seventh Ohio district, was visiting West Lafayette, but to be sure that the seniors enjoyed their tour, he arranged for them to have lunch in the Capitol dining room and, due to his absence, substituted with his office staff members.

The Loudonville class arrived in Washington by train Thursday night, according to class president George Handenshisld, and had spent their time in visiting Capitol Hill.

"Tomorrow will include other tours of interest to me," was the opinion of Marvin Vaughan, vice president. "The tours of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and the FBI are just what we've been waiting for."

Barbara Horn, secretary and treasurer, echoed the sentiments and thoughts of the remainder of the 36 students when she said, "Golly, we're having a swell time, and this honor of having lunch in the House dining room is tops."

The Loudonville seniors left Washington Saturday for their return trip to Ohio.

Painting Completed On Bucyrus' Water Tank

BUCYRUS—Construction painters from Chicago completed work Saturday on the city's new 500,000 gallon water tank.

Painters have been at work on the job for two weeks with only one interruption, a day lost last Monday after thieves climbed to the top of the tower and made away with the two 900-foot pieces of rope used by the men in their work. New ropes were purchased to complete the job.

CLERK RESIGNS

MT. GILEAD — Harley D. Miracle resigned as clerk of the Mt. Gilead village school board this week after serving on the board for 21 years. He served six years as a member of the board and for the past 15 years as clerk of the board. Robert Gladden was hired as the new clerk.

CLUB CELEBRATES

MILLERSBURG — Aftermath Literary club will celebrate their Golden Anniversary party at a six p. m. dinner in the home of Mrs. C. R. Cary tonight.

County Agent Speaks

Alfalfa 'Ain't Hay' Until Sap Goes Away

By GEORGE B. GANYARD
(Richland County Agent)

Farmers spend lots of money to get good hay crops growing in their meadows. There is nothing more pleasing than a thick lush stand of alfalfa or clover mixtures in the fields. But "that ain't hay." Not until it reaches the barn after losing enough of the sap so that it won't spoil in storage, can it be called hay.

While there is much that is not known about the what, why and how of nutrition, there is convincing evidence that the most valuable parts of forage plants are the most perishable.

If the cows could harvest this green crop right from the field each day, they could get all the food value that is there.

In this climate, livestock depends upon stored roughage six months of the year. That poses the number one problem for the cattle or sheep man—how to get that nutritious legume mixture from the meadow to the manger with the least possible loss of feed value.

That is no simple job in our semi-humid climate. Too often the weather is rainy when it is time to make the first cutting of alfalfa mixtures and the whole crop may be spoiled by rain.

As the green plants stand in the meadow, they are rich in protein and vitamins. Forage cut before bloom is slow to cure. Cut in the overripe stage, it cures quickly, but is low in protein. Agronomists have suggested that a practical compromise results from cutting red clover when the plants are in the half bloom stage and alfalfa when one-fourth of the bloom is on.

METHODS RATED

Some tests made at Beltsville, Md., showed that putting the crop in the silo rated first, wilting in the field and finishing drying in the mow with forced air rated next and field curing rated last in the percentage of food value getting from the meadow to the manger.

Here are a few things to remember: Hay completely field-dried usually loses too many leaves in handling. It is also exposed longer to weather which may change suddenly from a burning sun to a protein and vitamin-leaching rain. Forage harvested and chopped into the silo with a relatively high moisture content involves handling material heavily freighted with water.

Forage partly dried in the field and finished by forced air in the mow loses fewer leaves than by the field dried method and is exposed to weather for shorter time. This method is gaining in favor and gives the farmer a measure of insurance against loss of quality due to bad weather.

Experience indicates that the additional cost per ton of mow-dried hay is more than offset by the higher feed value of the hay as a result of lower loss from the meadow to the manger. After all, that is what the feeder is seeking.

Some farmers with silos put the first cutting of alfalfa mixtures into the silo and make hay of the second cutting. Weather conditions here seem to make that combination an advantage over the long-practiced dependence entirely upon field curing.

In any case, it will pay to give the matter careful study and it usually helps to talk with farmers who have been using various methods to find what their experience has been.

SPITTLE BUGS HERE

Spittle bugs are here again. Plants affected look as though a horse had slobbered on them. A closer look will show a little yellowish insect inside the blob of froth—that's the spittle bug himself. He is a sap sucker.

If too many of them show up, the plants lose enough sap to hinder normal growth. That cuts the hay yield or the strawberry crop.

Entomologists suggest dusting strawberries with one of the benzene hexachloride compounds to kill spittle bugs if they are numerous. This is not a preventive—it is only to be used after the blobs of froth are noticed. When the dust hits these frothy masses, the bugs get mixed up with it and die. The treatment is too expensive to be practical on meadows. It is best not to apply the dust within a week before picking the berries.

GOP Names New Officers

MT. GILEAD—The Morrow county Republican Central committee organized for the coming year at a meeting held last week in the Morrow county courthouse.

Warren Smiley of Cardington was named chairman of the committee. H. P. Squires, Chesterville, was named vice chairman and Davis Phillips, near Mt. Gilead, was named secretary.

Members of the Executive committee are: Goorley Rhodebeck, chairman: Morriss Payne of Canaan township, treasurer; Harold Taylor of Mt. Gilead, secretary; Fred Brown of Harmony township; H. P. Squires of Chesterville; H. E. Jacobs of Marengo; Gar Smith of Congress township, and Warren Smiley of Cardington.

On the Republican Women's committee are: Mrs. Earl Griffith, chairman; Mrs. Frank Hartsook of Cardington, vice chairman and Mrs. Thelma Loren of Mt. Gilead, secretary-treasurer.

SENIOR HIGH TEACHERS PLAN SUMMER VACATIONS

Varied Activities Take the Interest of Men And Women Who Have Three Months Vacation.

By ANN SCHOENMAN

IT ISN'T just the students that are watching the calendar with an eager eye, but also the teachers. After their many months teaching school they have planned activities that will take up the best part of the vacation time. They have planned things that will take their minds off of the worries they have had during the winter months.

Miss Ruth Dunham, Latin teacher, is going to take a complete rest in Alma, Michigan, and hopes to get well quickly after the long siege she has had with sickness. . . . Ralph Juniper is planning to go away and forget the headaches he had with his job as senior class advisor this year. . . . Miss Kathleen Mendenhall hears the call of the north woods beckoning her to Maine. . . . One of the domestic teachers is Mrs. Paul Conrad. She plans to spend her vacation cleaning house. From one hard job to another.

George Sherman started his new house out on Millsboro road last summer and this year he intends to finish it. . . . Miss Martha Weimer will be working in an office. . . . Miss Frances Randall can be found basking in the sun at Sarasota, Florida, during the summer months. . . . Herman Bishop, assistant principal, is planning to spend a week at Lakeside as an advisor for a church group. After this rest and change of climate he will start at the hard grind of a job here in town.

L. E. Beam will travel and work. He will work a while and then take life easy and see the United States. . . . From one classroom to another is the fate of Charles Vanderbilt. He will leave the senior high physics room to enter Ashland college's. He will teach the mystery of that deep subject to students there during the summer.

Miss Gladys MacDonald is really going to take life easy and rest all season. . . . Mathew Elias plans to loaf and have a good time. . . . If you go to any of the golf courses around town you might happen to run into Miss Marjorie Boals, physical education teacher for the girls. She is going to take up this sport for a pleasant pastime. . . . The other girls' physical education teacher, Miss Louise Ferris, will work at several playgrounds around town.

These are just a few of the ideas that the teachers have for relaxation from long winter months in the classrooms. They will play and work until the doors of the schools open for another season behind desks and books.

Shower Honors Mrs. Wagner

A miscellaneous shower was given Friday evening by Mrs. A. L. Wagner, 362 Altamont avenue, honoring Mrs. Walter Wagner, nee Hylda Kappes. Twenty were in attendance with prizes awarded to Mrs. Henry Stutz and Mrs. Earl Beilstein, who presented them to Mrs. Wagner.

A lunch was served at a late hour. Table decorations were pink and white flowers and the favors were pink miniature sprinkling cans. A large sprinkling can centered over the table flowers served as the decorations. Mrs. Wagner received many lovely gifts.

Around O. S. U.'s Oval

By LARRY MURPHY, News-Journal Correspondent

COLUMBUS—With all the hectic gaiety of tradition-laden May week out of the way, Mansfielders at Ohio State buckled down to reviewing for final exams this week as the spring quarter drew to a close.

Their sole respite from studies between now and finals week (June 7-11) will be the long week end over Memorial day with no classes on Monday, May 31.

The current school year has been a busy and eventful one for Mansfield and area students at the state university, with hometowners active in virtually every phase of campus life and especially prominent in journalism, music and sports.

These same students, along with those less prominent in extracurricular activities, have also been a credit to Mansfield and Richland county scholastically.

On the social scene, members of the Mansfield club celebrated that organization's first birthday on a recent week end with a picnic and baseball game at Griggs Dam a few miles northwest of the city along the Olentangy river.

Guests of honor for this occasion were Mayor and Mrs. Roy W. Vaughn, who motored down to Columbus wth their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Deems. Another Mansfield pair making the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kalish.

Perfect picnic weather, tailor-made for the occasion, gave the Kalish family an opportunity to record the picnic's "chow line" on movie film. Needless to say, everyone "got into the act" by mugging for the camera with hot-dog-laden sticks.

CAMPUS CHATTER: George Stuhldreher making the arts college honor roll with an "A" minus point-hour of 3.7 . . . Betty Edwards, former General hospital nurse, planning to stay in Columbus for the summer quarter and also to do some practical nursing . . . OSU gridder Bill Doolittle coaching the junior varsity football team for State . . . Beverly Noel remarking to a campus chum in front of the commerce building that her family is moving to Akron this month . . . ## Westbrook Club Has Continuous Holiday Events

Westbrook Country Club members have had a busy weekend with activity continuous from Saturday through today. The traditional Memorial Day program is golf during the morning and afternoon and a bingo game tonight at 8:30 p. m. with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hegarty as hosts.

On Saturday evening the club held their opening dinner-dance of the season with Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Talmage as hosts. A buffet dinner was served from 7 to 9:30, after which dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by Shively Yates' orchestra from Massillon. Several hundred were in attendance, including many of the younger set, home from college.

Sunday was spent in golfing and a holiday buffet was served from 6 to 8 p. m. Free snacks were furnished during the afternoon.

The men's league played golf Friday and on Saturday morning the women took over the course. During Saturday afternoon the men held their "golf sweepstakes" match. This morning there will be a men's golf tournament and in the afternoon the women will play in tournament.

Two hundred attended the special opening party of the club season May 22 with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Stevens as hosts. A buffet supper was served from 7 to 9:30 p. m. after which old time movies furnished the diversion of the evening.

Buena Vista Club Plans June Picnic

Mr. and Mrs. Don Stafford, Koogle road, were hosts to 16 members of the Buena Vista club and their families Friday evening. A business session was held following the covered dish dinner. Contests were the diversion of the evening with prizes for the old fashioned spelling bee awarded to Mrs. L. F. Hout, Mrs. Russell Jacob and Kenneth Nixon.

Plans were made to hold a picnic supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gardner, Bowen road, June 27, at 6:30 p. m. Mrs. Gerald Dudley was recreation leader at the recent meeting and Bennie Stafford will be in charge of the diversions for the next sesssion.

Moose Committee

The Membership committee, Women of the Moose, had its annual banquet at Staiger's Tea Room, Glessner avenue, this week. Twelve members and a guest, Mrs. Lloyd Hughes, senior regent, were present.

Mrs. J. M. Tyree, committee chairman, gave each member a gift and the group also presented a gift to her.

Plans were made for the committee's chapter night in June.

Mrs. V. C. Hageman received the prize for the evening.

The next meeting will be June 30 when Mrs. Warren Baker and Mrs. Michael Campanelli will serve as hostesses for a picnic.

WCTU Meets

Iota Sigma, WCTU met last week in the home of Mrs. Nanna Sanborn, 76 North Weldon avenue. The meeting was opened with group singing and after the business session the Rev. Grover Davis gave the devotions and a talk on "True Happiness." Mrs. Sanborn gave a reading, "The Simplicity of Greatness". The next meeting will be June 29 at the home of Mrs. E. E. Beechler, Trimble road. It will be a picnic supper.

CIRCLE MEETS

Members of Circle Three of the Ontario Community church met recently at the home of Mrs. R. J. Elliot. Twelve of the organization and one guest, Mrs. Glenn Hartman, were in attendance. Mrs. Jay Harriman furnished the devotions and program, speaking on "Home Missions." She was assisted by Mrs. Clarence Hendrickson. Mrs. Roy Daugherty and Mrs. Orlie Orewiler. The contest prize was presented to Mrs. Hartman. The hostess served refreshments at a late hour.

MRS. S. E. TAYLOR

Mrs. S. E. Taylor Gives Tips On Planting and Caring for Iris

By DOROTHY MONROE

WHETHER you prefer to mix 'em or match 'em, now is the time to start planning your iris border for the spring of 1949.

Mrs. S. E. Taylor, 241 Lexington avenue, prefers to mix 'em.

There are 35 varieties of iris in Mrs. Tayor's gardens at her home and at her cottage by Walton Lake. And this week when the blossoms started to appear she noted that there are three clumps of the same type in one of her borders at her home. This, she feels, must be remedied.

As soon as the plants quit blooming she will transplant two of these clumps to another location and replace them with clumps of another variety and color.

While iris are blooming is the only time you can plan the color scheme for the next year. As soon as the blossoms are gone you should do your transplanting, Mrs. Taylor advises. And, she adds, iris ought to be transplanted and fed bone meal or some other plant food at least every four years.

FIRST STEP

The first step in transplanting these plants is checking the bulbs for iris bore (dark brown spots and holes). Cut this part back to the white, fleshy part, dust it with sulphur and replant it. But don't put iris bulbs too deep in the ground. Only about half an inch of earth should be above the bulb.

"Iris are among the most satisfactory plants because they are easy to take care of and they have beautiful blooms," believes Mrs. Taylor, who does all of the work in both of her gardens.

Mrs. Taylor has only iris in her border but if you prefer to mix these plants with other perennials or annuals she suggests that the leaves be cut down after the blossoms are gone. This is especially wise the first of August when the tips begin to turn brown and the tall leaves detract from the beauty of the border. And cutting them off doesn't hurt the plants a bit.

During this week all seeds and annuals for Fall blooming should be planted. It is a good plan to set out many of these plants because few perennials bloom in the Fall.

Another suggestion offered by Mrs. Taylor is to set plant seeds for spring annuals such as double Shirley poppies and larkspur in the Fall (not later than Sept. 1).

This year Mrs. Taylor is serving as secretary-treasurer of the Linnaeus Garden Club. The other officers are Mrs. Willis Linn, president, and Mrs. Vale Scouten, vice president.

The club was organized in 1938 and officers were elected March 22 that year. Mrs. Frank Glasgow was the first president. Her home is in Columbus now so she is an inactive member but she still attends many of the meetings. Mrs. Fred Dippman was the charter secretary-treasurer and still is active. Other charter members who are active in the group now are Mrs. Charles Chew and Mrs. Carl Spangler.

The club was named for Karl Linnaeus, a Swedish physician and botanist. The name was suggested by Mrs. Glasgow and Mrs. Harvey Lanehart presented the first paper about Dr. Linnaeus at a meeting April 12, 1938. Dr. Linnaeus classified plant life botanically as we know the groups today.

ORGANIZE NEW CLUB

Among the club's 1948 projects is the sponsoring of the newly organized Agnes Paulsen Garden Club. Mrs. Henry Paulsen is a former president of the Linnaeus Club and is leading in the organization plans for the new club. She is assisted by Mrs. H. L. Spandau and Mrs. Scouten. The Agnes Paulsen Club held its first meeting last Wednesday.

The herb garden to be arranged at the home of Mrs. Guy E. Shawk, 178 Park avenue west, is another project of the organization. The members have studied herbs since the beginning of the war. Mrs. Carl Spangler is chairman of the committee which has chosen the site and is designing the layout now. She is assisted by Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Paulsen.

This herb garden will be available to the public when it is finished and the club plans to have an annual herb tea at the garden.

The red carnation is the club's official flower and its motto is "Coming together is the beginning, Keeping together is progress, Working together is success."

Meetings are conducted the year around. The members meet the second and fourth Tuesdays from April through October and from November through March they convene the third Tuesday.

Horse Show to Be Held Here On June 20

Bit and Spur Club members have completed plans for their horse show which is scheduled for June 20, Sunday afternoon at 1 p. m. in the old senior high stadium. This show is open and it is expected that 300 horses from all parts of Ohio and eastern Indiana will be shown at that time.

There will be 20 classes, both Western and English, with $1200 in prizes, trophies and ribbons to be given at that time.

Clarence Williams, president of the club, will be in charge of general arrangements.

Members met Friday evening at Johns Park pavilion to complete their plans.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

PAGE FOUR — MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MAY 31, 1948

There are not too many people in the world—they are just not properly distributed.

"Burning the midnight oil" should never have grown to such unreasonable proportions that people got the idea they had to keep it up all night.

Progress of civilization is seen in observing that fewer boys throw stones at birds—and it is also noted that less profanity is heard from members of adult groups gathered at street corners.

Autos For Those Who Can Afford Them

TOMORROW'S entry into June—after three days of holidaying—will find a considerable part of the automobile industry keyed to increased production, following settlements of wage disputes between labor and management of General Motors and Chrysler.

While no announcement of price increases has yet been made, as a follow-up of wage boosts, procedure for the past several years in the automotive industry has shown such a definite pattern of successive price jumps that still another one seems quite likely.

With demands continuing to exceed production of new cars, the price-raising formula is in full accord with customary procedure, under the "law of supply and demand," but the fact cannot be escaped that this policy results in many people being "priced out of the market" by the approximate doubling of cost of any one of the previously "low-priced" cars.

An encouraging phase of "buyer resistance" is seen in the report from Cleveland that there has been a sharp break in the long-inflated used-car market in that city, where atrociously high-priced used cars are piling up in sales lots without evidence of buyer interest.

There is also appearance of let-down in the racket of offering practically new cars as "used," at higher prices than listed for the new ones, and growing resentment is being evidenced against the policy of loading up cars with unwanted accessories for which the would-be purchaser is required to pay "or else."

Present indications are to the effect that a considerable number of prospective purchasers of cars have decided to depend on other means of transportation until supply is sufficiently balanced with demand to restore the actual competition which will tend to bring down prices of automobiles as well as other commodities.

Subsidies Benefit Few, Penalize Many

TWO CURIOUS items came out of Washington within the past few days. They are curious, that is, in these days of inflation. The first item concerns Congress. With prices of food and clothing already sky high, the House and Senate bandied back and forth a measure to pay farmers roughly a billion dollars in subsidies. In other words the taxpayers are going to be assessed a billion dollars which will be given away to keep prices up.

The consumer not only pays high prices—he pays a second time to force himself to meet the soaring costs.

Obviously, in an election year, the legislators feel they cannot antagonize the farmer. But eventually this stupid process of priming the pump that is already overflowing is going to drown somebody.

The second curious item comes from the bureau of agricultural economics which reports that in 1947—with rural income high—Ohio farmers mortgaged their land to the tune of $166,000,000 above the preceding year. There could be several reasons for this. The first that comes to mind is that while farmers got good returns for their produce, they, like everyone else, had to pay exorbitantly for what they bought.

Again, for a number of years farm machinery has been scarce and when they could begin to get it last year, farmers found themselves forced to buy an abnormal amount at abnormal cost.

There seems to be no escape from the vicious spiral of living expenses, pushed even further upward by profligate government spending. Yet farmers and townsmen alike need to recall that going into debt is the very last "escape" that dare not be resorted to. Money is cheap now and a loan of a few hundred or even a few thousand dollars doesn't look like much. When prices begin to drop, as they eventually must, and a dollar is worth more than it is today, those few hundreds or few thousands are going to loom ghastly large. Trivial now, they may seem impossible to meet a few years hence.

An end to federal wasting and duplication will be one step in the right direction. Private resistance to high prices and to borrowing will be the second move that can get us back somewhere near a sensible standard of living without a complete financial debacle.

British Empire Guards 'Bulwark'

THE BRITISH empire does not always deserve to be called a voluntary association of free peoples. One example is Cyprus. This island in the Eastern Mediterranean is Greek in population and would like to join Greece, but the British insist on retaining it.

Only the other day the consultative assembly, a body by which the Cypriots make known their governmental wishes, asked for a completely representative government. The British refused, saying that these 400,000 Greeks had better stay under the charge of the British colonial office.

This unwillingness to give up Cyprus is in part due to the feebleness of Greece, and fear that if the Russians take over Greece they will get Cyprus also and have a fortress commanding the Eastern Mediterranean. Though the British have not had the island long (it was Turkish until the latter part of the 19th century), they already look upon it as a bulwark of empire.

So long as they feel that way about it, the Cypriots must be content with an enlarged degree of home rule, and postpone their desire for complete independence.

Dividends Also Trend Upward

CASH DIVIDENDS in April were 14 per cent more than a year ago, reports the department of commerce. The rate of gain is going up, too. February and March dividends this year were over those of a year ago, but only by 13 per cent.

This may make it possible to understand why unions think their members should get more pay. It may also throw some light on the rise of prices.

The older one gets the less he has to worry about temptation.

Haphazard Selection of Vice Presidents

By THOMAS L. STOKES

FOUR YEARS AGO, a few months before the 1944 national conventions, this reporter did quite an exhaustive job of research into the history of vice presidential candidates and vice presidents, how they were picked, how many were elevated to the presidency "by fate" as we put it, what sort of men they were, and so on, for a series of articles.

It was an engrossing study.

It revealed what the writer had suspected, since he had seen several vice presidential candidates nominated in both parties, that almost invariably the vice presidential candidate was sort of an afterthought and usually was picked out of the hat, so to speak, and often in the wee hours of the morning by weary leaders. He was supposed to provide contrasts to the presidential nominee so as to make the ticket a compromise to please various elements.

This is in keeping with the established fact that our political parties and everything they do are the products of compromise.

Both of our major parties have diverse elements because we are such a diverse nation.

It is traditional to pick the vice presidential candidate from a different section of the country than the presidential candidate to achieve balance geographically. Often, too, the vice presidential nomination is used to give representation to a different viewpoint than that held by the presidential nominee. Sometimes, in order to assuage disappointments, the vice presidential nomination is given to the man who was runner-up in the balloting, since he represents a substantial block of delegates and presumably a sizable element in the party.

* * *

Dangerous Method.

WHILE this business has never gone to ludicrous extremes, it may be said figuratively, if not literally, that it almost reaches the point of picking a vice presidential candidate who parts his hair different from the top man on the ticket, who has blue eyes as compared with brown, who gets up chipper, cheerful and whistling in the morning when the presidential candidate may be inclined to be grumpy, and so on.

In brief, the possibility that the second man on the ticket might one day become president does not seem to enter much into the calculations. Seven have in our history. Only one of them has joined the small and select group of outstanding presidents, meaning Theodore Roosevelt, the admired and beloved and, by some, feared "Teddy" and "TR" of his era. And he was picked for a reason not in our catalogue which was that the GOP. Old Guard of that day wanted to take him out of the governor's chair at Albany, which was regarded then as now as a step to the White House. So they "buried" him in the vice presidency, thinking they had thus safely removed him from a possible line of succession.

The moral of the series of pieces of this reporter back in the spring of 1944, was that, because of everything disclosed, the national conventions should exercise more care in picking vice presidential candidates and also that that official should be given a more responsible role in government.

Since that time fate has intervened again—for the seventh time.

* * *

Should Be Prepared.

THIS is merely to repeat the moral of 1944. These are trying times that make the presidency a trying ordeal indeed, physically and in every other way.

There is good argument for selecting for second place on the tickets of both parties younger and vigorous men, men of proved capacity in government. This is especially so since it appears probable now that because of circumstances, older men will be nominated for president.

It is virtually certain that President Truman will be the candidate of his party. A deadlock now in prospect in the Republican convention likely would mean that an older man would be chosen to head its ticket.

This is a good time for a reform long advocated. This is to give our vice presidents more to do in the administration of a government that is becoming increasingly complex, and not relegate them entirely to presiding over the Senate and being a sort of ceremonial officer at social and official functions.

By assignment to duties in the executive realm the vice president could not only be helpful by relieving the president of some of his burden, but also could get valuable training and experience in government. Which prompts the observation that there is no reason why the vice presidency should not be a stepping-stone to the presidency, no reason why a party should not promote a vice president who had shown capacity.

Comforted By a Face

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ABOVE my bed there hangs a face. Sometimes it happens to me, as it does to all of us, that I am forced to spend weary weeks in that bed. I do not spend them graciously or patiently. I am a very poor person to keep in bed for I love the wild and nameless trails of life.

So there are times when even books, which I so love, do not comfort me. I want to throw the books right through my beautiful windows. I want to get up and bite the furniture.

And there are other times—such as come to all of us—when memory turns to those whom I have loved and lost, and my heart breaks all over again. I see my son who went when he was still so young. I see my brothers who did such great things in the short space of their lives. And my sisters, who were so beloved.

They are all gone now and sometimes the thought of it wrings me and breaks me until I could scream with longing.

You've known those times, too, haven't you? Those wretched barren hours when life seems drained of meaning and love is a mockery. You've known the bitterness and frustration and they've left you scarred perhaps, just as they sometimes leave me scarred.

But I have found one thing that comforts me even in my most rebellious hours. I have found the face which hangs above my bed.

It is a face on a little plaster bust which came from Vienna long, long ago. I do not know who made it. I do not know whether you would call it a beautiful face—there are so many planes to beauty. But I do know that there lingers in that face such compassion that it heals my deepest pain.

I am not a wise woman nor a very good woman. I have done so many unkind and cruel things in my reckless impulsiveness. And the world if it could sit by my bedside and judge me, might say that I have come to my just deserts.

But this face which looks down at me does not judge me in my pain and humiliation. Never once have I seen that face shrink from me or rebuke me or, what is worst of all, forget me.

Through many years it has stood there with its love and its tenderness and its infinite understanding streaming down upon me. For well she knew how hard a human life could me . . . how deep its pits of desolation and despair, its awful heartbreak when the light goes out.

Yes, she knew well all that we humans know. She knew well for she had borne the Christ and there's no bed of pain her spirit does not touch.

No rage or shame she does not understand.

Dear Mary, Mother, take this as my thanks.

Looking Back

Twenty Years Ago Today

Thursday, May 31, 1928

Fiftieth anniversary of the hanging of Edward Webb in old jailyard on East Third street, for murder of William S. Finney at his home three miles southwest of Mansfield.

Word was received that the Canton workhouse was too crowded to accept any more Mansfield prisoners.

Tom Gallagher reported to police he had fired a shot at a prowler in the yard of his home at 78 McPherson street, after several homes in the vicinity had been burglarized.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Odenkirk, 53 Blanche street.

Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer," with Vitaphone sound, was attraction at the Madison.

Carl Heim, 77 Benton street, was improving after operation in Cleveland hospital.

Richard Carver, 19 North Adams street, sustained fractured foot while working at King's horseshoeing shop.

Tons of Rotten Food and Bad Drugs Sold

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The American people don't realize it, but an average of twenty tons of contaminated food is sold to the public every day in the year because the Drug Administration has lost its authority to seize goods that spoil after reaching their destination.

What is even more alarming, the government also has been stopped from confiscating deteriorated drugs unless it can be proved that the drugs lost their potency before delivery.

For patients who may need a drug such as penicillin, this could mean the difference between life and death.

The government was stripped of its power to seize spoiled goods by a decree of the Ninth Circuit appeals court in San Francisco when the Phelps-Dodge company, a copper-mining firm, challenged the government's authority to confiscate some macaroni that had spoiled in company warehouses after shipment from Colorado to Arizona.

The circuit court upheld Phelps-Dodge, ruled that the government's authority ended after the goods reached their destination. Later, the Supreme Court refused to review the case.

* * *

House Comes to Rescue.

IMMEDIATELY, Connecticut's Republican Congressman William Miller introduced a bill restoring the Food and Drug Administration's jurisdiction. This brought a hailstorm of protests from the nation's millers, stirred up chiefly by E. W. Morrison of Denton, Texas, president of the Morrison Milling company.

Morrison, himself, appeared before the Senate commerce committee in opposition to the bill after it had passed the House without a dissenting vote. He brought as reinforcements Leslie Ford of Shawnee, Okla., president of the Shawnee Milling company, and Charles McClave of Great Falls, Mont., treasurer of Montana Flour Mills, Inc.

Morrison urged a watered-down substitute bill which would force the government to prove "willful intent" or "gross negligence" before it could press criminal charges.

"There have been seizures," he argued, "because of the inclusion in shipments of flour or meal of infinitesimal quantities of so-called filth."

"I don't even want an infinitesimal part of rat droppings in food that I purchase," snapped back Senator Brien McMahon, Connecticut Democrat.

* * *

Flour Salesman Obstructs.

NEVERTHELESS, the flour lobby has managed to obstruct the bill — largely through Senator "Pappy" O'Daniel of Texas, a former flour salesman, and Senator Ed Moore, millionaire Oklahoma oilman. Neither of them is running for re-election, and apparently they aren't concerned over public reaction.

The bill is now stymied in committee and may not come up again in the closing rush of business. Meanwhile, the public is still buying tons of rotten food and bad drugs every day.

Note 1—Senator O'Daniel is reported to be taking a $100,000-a-year job with a Texas flour mill after he leaves the Senate.

Note 2—What the flour lobbyists, who appeared in opposition to the Food and Drug Administration, didn't tell Congress is that all three have been convicted for possessing contaminated food. E. W. Morrison was fined $500 in Sherman, Texas, on Nov. 26, 1946, for shipping corn meal, contaminated with rat droppings and insect fragments. Leslie Ford's Shawnee Milling Company was fined $1,000 in Oklahoma City, April 26, 1947, for the same offense. McClave's Montana Flour Mills also was fined $2,500 and costs in Cleveland, O., April 30, 1948, for possessing flour, contaminated with insect bits.

Capital Chaff.

THE ARMY is working on a sweeping new plan for promoting officers—patterned after the British system. If adopted, it would fix an officers' rank according to the job he holds . . . A Gallup poll shows that a clear-cut majority of voters favor federal aid to education and would be willing to pay more taxes to finance it. The Army and Navy are lobbying undercover against a bill that would give reservists on active duty the same death and disability benefits as regulars. The bill was introduced by Senator Bill Knowland of California and Congresswoman Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. As an example of the present injustice, a reserve Marine pilot, George Finnegan, recently lost an arm in a crash while on two-weeks active duty, but was unable to collect a cent of disability pay . . . Senator Ralph Flanders of Vermont has written a stiff letter to Ben Fairless, president of U. S. Steel, and other big steel magnates urging them to reconsider their decision to block steel allocations for low-cost pre-fabricated housing . . . Flanders points out in his letter that the anti-inflation objective of the law passed by Congress last December, under which voluntary steel allocations are made, is being violated as long as Big Steel sells only to builders of conventional brick and wood-built houses and boycotts the pre-fab housing industry, which can turn out low-cost assembly-line homes within the means of veterans' pocketbooks.

Military Might Paraded

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THIS CONGRESS is likely to end with a record of having appropriated more for military expenditures than any other peacetime Congress in history. In the same session it has pinched and pared on the things that make for stability in this country and in the world.

The last goes even for the state department although, after a great struggle, it was possible to get an appropriation for an information service that approaches adequacy. Peace starves while war is fattened on what is scarcest and dearest.

When we look at Russia, the contrast is even sharper. World War II did enormous destruction in Russia, so that it is necessary to build back toward a level that was already painfully low in comparison to American standards. Yet the little that comes out of that oppressive land is almost all concerned with armed might.

The pictures of Stalin and the members of the Politburo taken in Red Square on May Day show them in full military regalia, viewing fleets of planes and miles of marching men. We are told of the largest tank ever made and of new bombers and fighters.

But also, from the little that trickles out, we know that the Russian people are no more desirous of war than the American people are. Here was one real accomplishment of the recent exchange of notes and the public declarations that followed. Both peoples are longing for an assurance of peace.

The knowing speak of Russia's "peace offensive," putting the whole affair down to a tactical maneuver intended to deflect American interest and weaken American determination. It can be interpreted that way and with considerable supporting evidence.

Certainly Stalin's reply to Henry Wallace's open letter was almost entirely propaganda rather than a realistic effort to remove the obstacles that stand in the way of true peace. The reply repeated all the stale generalizations that have come out of the Soviet propaganda machine for the past three years.

Firm Course Needed.

BUT it is a mistake, in my opinion, to dismiss it entirely as a new tactic aimed at gaining what the tactics of bluster and threat failed to gain.

In the same way it is a mistake to assume that the little group of men in the Kremlin can entirely ignore popular feeling. The Soviet "peace offensive" may have been fully as much for home consumption as it was a new move in the Soviet-U.S. chess game.

There is at least one piece of tangible evidence showing why the Kremlin might hesitate to send Russian troops into Western Europe. That is the continuing desertions of Soviet officers attached to occupation troops stationed in Eastern Germany.

At a rate that is growing fairly rapidly, they are seeking refuge in the zones of Germany under control of the U. S. and the British.

The common soldier in the ranks of the Russian occupation troops would probably be doing the same thing if he were not so closely supervised and, in fact, locked up each night in barracks.

Here is the sign of an internal problem that may go much deeper than any one can know.

It has been said, and again with some supporting evidence, that the Soviet "peace offensive" has weakened U. S. determination to stand firm in Western Europe with the strength and the resources to maintain independent nations there. That is a sad commentary on the uncertainty, the vacillation, of our own policy.

Our position in the world requires strength — productive and military strength beyond the power of any "peace offensive" to shake. But our position also calls for the strength and the confidence to wage peace and to wage it effectively at every opportunity.

Timely Editorial

Saving Made Easy.

Urging people to save their money is not new. It was a favorite theme of Benjamin Franklin. And most of us still have some degree of that good old American characteristic—thrift.

Common sense tells us that when someone offers us a gilt-edge guarantee to pay us $4 for every $3 we invest—at the end of 10 years—it is a good deal.

That's why the U.S. Treasury department's current security savings bond campaign is a highly recommended form of putting away money for a rainy day.

It offers a particularly attractive way for businessmen and professional men, too, to provide for their own "social security" or retirement plan. For the ex-GI who has just landed his Ohio bonus, it would be well if he put at least part of his windfall in bonds.—Akron Beacon Journal.

3. Rosa Bonheur (1822-1899). J. B. C. Corot (1796-1875); J. F. Millet (1815-1875).

As Others See It

How Annoying!

One neighbor is so mean she doesn't want our children to destroy her property. Evidently she doesn't believe in children's rights. —Kansas City Times.

Appreciated Insult.

Several new recordings feature harmonica-banjo accompaniments, since neither is regarded by Petrillo as a musical instrument. With new opportunities for employment thus open to them, the banjo and harmonica players are deeply appreciative of the insult.—Kansas City Star.

As Cerf Tells It

A famous Park avenue psychiatrist who specialized in children handed one cherub back to its adoring mother and admonished her, "You must handle this child with great care. Remember you are dealing with a sensitive, high-strung, maladjusted little stinker."

They Do It In France

By CALVIN A. BYERS

I'VE READ an interesting piece today, "Eleven Centuries Alone," by Russell Lord, in the last issue of The Land. It is the story of a visit to the "most venerable peasant family in all of France." This family has lived upon the same hill farm for eleven centuries, and the author recalls that here "for the first time in my life I saw contoured stripfields, vineyards, meadows and pastures together with what amounted to trash culture and the creation of compost in the topsoil, all proceeding in harmonious combination and with undeniable evidence of permanence."

The author recalls that during the first World War, his regiment helped French wheat farmers harvest their crop. The Americans were billeted in what they called scornfully "a manure village." It never occurred to them that such painfully anxious and careful methods of maintaining the fertility of the soil might prove appropriate at home in U. S. A.

Later on, when he returned to France on a between-war trip of research and writing, he hunted up Pierre Lafargue whose picture was in a French magazine as manager of the oldest farm in France. It was quite a search. Nobody in the nearest town had ever heard of this quiet farmer. A one-legged ex-soldier on a bicycle with a single pedal finally volunteered to show the way to the stranger . . . although he warned that "if the farm is, as you say, in the hills beyond Molieres, then only a devil or a cat can find it."

He found it. A farm of 60 acres, so steep that in America it would be called waste or at most pasture land. A small square house of stone and plaster, a good-sized stone barn and a strawstack in a leveled space atop a hill. The house built in 1704, where for six generations there has been an average of six children under the roof.

The work was done with cows—yoked together and guided by talking to them. No reins. They look like Jerseys as big as Holsteins and work right up to the day they freshen. They are better than oxen because they breed and multiply. They are carefully stabled and every bit of manure saved for the land. Nine cows and one horse are kept on this small farm. The straw under them is more than a foot and a half thick, and every ounce of animal waste is absorbed and hauled at once out upon the land. He lugs green feed and pumpkins in, and feeds them clover hay. If at the end of the year there is any straw left in the stack, that is hauled out, too.

His vines demand little attention, since they border the edges of fields, like a cropped fencerow. The main crop is wheat, every other year. Wheat and a cultivated crop—wheat and forage, wheat and clover. They plow with those cows and a swivel plow. And the land does not wear out or wash away, through the centuries.
